Fire's Hero Dead Honored at Last Rites

Peace hath her victories no less renowned than war... and all Brockton today pays tribute to the 12 firemen who lost their lives in their heroic fight against the spreading flames of the Strand Theater on Monday. The rites were held in three churches at three-quarter hour intervals . . . and here the body of gallant Martin Lipper, World War veteran, is carried into St. Patrick's Church.

HERE'S HOW 7 BILLIONS TO BE SPENT

WASHINGTON, March 12 (AP)—President Roosevelt sent to Congress today a request for a $7,000,000,000 appropriation to carry out a "fixed policy of this government to make for democracies every gun, plane and munition of war that we possibly can."

In a letter to Speaker Rayburn, transmitting detailed estimates of the budget director for the $7,000,000,000 expenditure, Mr. Roosevelt asserted:

"I strongly urge the immediate enactment of this appropriation."

The Chief Executive declared that America has felt that "it was imperative to the security of America that we encourage the democracies' heroic resistance to aggressions, by not only maintaining but also increasing the flow of material assistance from this country."

Therefore, he said, Congress has enacted and he had signed the British aid bill.

In London, Prime Minister Churchill announced to the House of Commons that the British Aid Bill had become law and termed it a "new Magna Carta . . . an inspiring act of faith."—Editor's note.

The President's request for the biggest peace time appropriation bill in the nation's history went to Congress less than 24 hours after he signed the bill into law and approved the first list of supplies to be shipped to Britain and to Greece.

BIG SHARE FOR PLANES

The appropriation estimate of Budget Director Smith broke the $7,000,000,000 down into various categories, of which the largest by far was $2,054,000,000 for "aircraft and aeronautical material, including engines, spare parts and accessories."

Other categories were:

$1,343,000,000 for ordnance and ordnance stores, supplies, spare parts, and materials, including armor and ammunition and their components.

$1,350,000,000 for agricultural, industrial and other commodities and articles.

$362,000,000 for tanks, armored cars, automobiles, trucks, and other automotive vehicles, with spare parts and accessories.

$629,000,000 for vessels, ships, boats and other water craft, and equipage, supplies, materials, parts and accessories.

$260,000,000 for miscellaneous military equipment, supplies and materials.

$752,000,000 for facilities and equipment for the manufacture or

YUGOSLAVIA REPORTED READY TO SIGN

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, March 12 (AP)—Yugoslavia was reported in usually reliable government circles tonight to have agreed "in principle" to sign the three-power military pact of Berlin, Rome and Tokyo.

These quarters said Premier Dragisa Cvetkovic and Foreign Minister Aleksander Cincar-Markovic would be in Berlin within a few days to discuss the formula they now have devised in a session of the crown council to meet Germany's demands.

They will ask, it is said, that Germany grant a "transition period" in which to prepare pro-British public opinion in Yugoslavia for the signing lest there be internal trouble.

Nazi Bombs Dig Huge Craters In Buckingham Palace Grounds

By JAMES E. BROWN

International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, March 12 (INS)—Three German bombs fell on the grounds of Buckingham Palace in London during a recent Nazi raid, causing considerable damage and fatally injuring a policeman, it was announced officially today.

King George VI and Queen Elizabeth were not in residence at the palace when the bombs fell.

It was the second time since the German "blitz" attacks began that the palace grounds were hit.

Revelation that the palace once more had been the target of Nazi raiders followed a night of widespread German bombing assaults.

Latest information received in London this morning said 34 separate localities were bombed last night and that concentrated attacks were made on three different towns.

MANY BURIED IN RUINS

Many families were buried under the debris of their homes in one northwestern town, which experienced its most sustained raid in many months.

Of the three bombs that hit the Buckingham Palace grounds, it was disclosed, two dug huge craters in the palace forecourt.

The third damaged the north gate lodge, shattering the gate pillars and fatally injuring a policeman on duty there.

The lodge-keeper and his wife had taken shelter within the palace and were not hurt.

Several months ago bombs fell on the palace grounds, causing considerable damage.

Authorities also permitted revelation today that during a recent Nazi raid on the South Wales port of Cardiff, St. David's Cathedral, the Blind Institute and the Royal Infirmary were damaged.

CASUALTIES LIGHT

Prompt action by fire fighters in the western midlands prevented serious fires in that area, the air ministry stated.

In a western midlands town six persons were killed when bombs hit a number of houses and demolished an air raid precaution warden's post.

Numerous homes were damaged in a south coast town and an eastern midlands town was hit by a large number of fire bombs. One northwestern town received its heaviest raid for some months.

BOMBS DROP NEAR TWO IRISH TOWNS

DUBLIN, March 12 (AP—The Eire government information bureau reported that bombs were dropped today by an unidentified plane near Carndonagh and Innishowen, County Donegal, but that no damage was done.

The bureau also announced that a British plane came down in the sea this morning in the neighborhood of Galway City and that two crewmen who survived were interned.

Carndonagh is a small town 20 miles east of Londonderry. Innishowen is in the extreme northwestern part of County Donegal.

The bombing was the first since Dublin and other nearby areas were raided four times Jan. 2-3, resulting in the death of three persons and injuries to 12. The Dublin government identified some of the bombs as of German manufacture and protested to Berlin.

BRITISH HEAR NAZI PLANES NOW BOMBING GREEK TOWNS

ISTANBUL, Turkey, March 12 (AP)—Members of the British party which arrived here from Bulgaria yesterday said they were told by a Greek officer that German planes already had begun bombing Greek towns from Bulgarian bases.

The train bearing the party, including the staff of the British legation in Sofia, twice entered Greek territory en route to the Turkish frontier.

On one occasion, the train was delayed, it was said, and a Greek officer explained it had been compelled to halt because German planes were raiding the town of Dede Agach in Grecian Thrace.

FOOD SUPPLY OF POPE CUT BY VATICAN CITY RATIONING

VATICAN CITY, March 12 (AP)—The rationing of food and some other goods was introduced in Vatican City today, affecting all residents including Pope Pius XII.

The allotments are slightly more generous than those in effect in Italy. Vatican City residents, for example, will be allowed a pound of coffee a month; Italians can't have any coffee.

The rationing fixes these limits among others: 3½ ounces of meat a day and two small loaves of bread; a quarter pound of butter a week, 4½ pounds of sugar a month and 22 gallons of gasoline monthly.

Hub Liner on Rocks In Buzzards Bay

The Merchant and Miners liner Kent, veteran of the Boston-to-Baltimore run and scheduled to be taken over by the United States Army tomorrow, ran hard aground at low tide on the rocks near Cuttyhunk Island in Buzzards Bay at dawn today.

The Kent was on her last voyage for the Merchants and Miners. At her scheduled arrival in Norfolk tomorrow, she was to have discharged her general cargo of freight, and to have been turned over to an Army crew for the run to a drydock.

So deep a hole was slashed in the vessel's side, however, that within half an hour she had taken 16 feet of water into her No. 1 and No. 2 holds, and she had settled quickly.

THIRD TO RUN AGROUND

The Kent was the third to run aground in the vicinity within a month. Only a few days ago the cruise ship President Hayes grounded a short way off, and previous to that the Norwegian freighter Ellin K. had smashed up and was badly damaged.

In her general cargo of New England products, the Kent carried a large quantity of machinery.

The Kent's sister ship, the Irwin, has already been taken over by the Army and is at present in drydock at Brooklyn, being refitted.

Capt. William Hudgins of Baltimore told officers of the United States Coast Guard, who arrived at the scene shortly after daylight in Coast Guard cutter 158, out of Wood's Hole, that the vessel was in no danger and that two tugs were on the way down from Boston to pull her free.

Because of the heavy seas pounding the Kent, however, the Coast Guard boat stood by.

Officials of the Boston office of the line said the Kent left Boston last night for Norfolk and Baltimore, carrying one passenger in addition to her crew of about 50 men. The passenger was reported to be the wife of the ship's chief engineer.

Capt. Hudgins said that when she was pulled free, the Kent would make her way back to Boston.

STRIKES ROCKS

The vessel's plight was discovered by a look-out man at the Cuttyhunk Coast Guard station who was observing the Kent's progress through Buzzards Bay after she emerged from the south end of the Cape Cod Canal.

When the ship reached a point about midway between Gull and Penekese Islands, she stopped abruptly. Chief Boatswain's Mate Alvin E. Newcomb, in charge of Cuttyhunk station, then went to the grounded liner in a lifeboat.

Arthur J. Doyle, general agent of the line in Boston, said the Kent was purchased from the Grace Line in 1936 and refurnished at a cost of approximately $400,000.

Resembling a transatlantic liner, with white superstructure looming high above its black hull, the Kent weighs 4858 tons and has a length of 373 feet.

DIVORCEE COLLAPSES UNDER CROSS-QUIZ AT $200,000 BALM TRIAL

Not only did 63-year-old Vernal E. Clem park his car in a downtown garage but he parked her with it, Mrs. Cecil Patterson, 46, Boston and Cleveland divorcee, testified today in her $200,000 breach of promise suit against the wealthy dairy executive.

Again today the comely divorcee, who says her romance with Clem began in balmy Florida, broke down on the witness stand under her long cross-examination, and as she wiped away tears she was temporarily excused.

She had been asked by Atty. James M. Graham if she was sober on the night of the garage incident, and she had replied:

"It was only 7 o'clock."

"Oh, so it was too early," Atty. Graham said.

"I don't know what you are talking about," she answered, as tears began to flow and she started to tremble. "Mr. Graham, you know my life from A to Z and you told me yourself I was justified in doing just what I am doing."

CONFERS WITH JUDGE

Graham beckoned to Atty. Joseph Schneider, counsel for Clem, and the two attorneys went up to Judge Frederic B. Greenhalge at the bench.

"Do you think I ought to go on?" Graham asked.

"Yes, go on and punish me," Mrs. Patterson cried from the witness box, where she sat dabbing her eyes with a handkerchief.

Judge Greenhalge, however, excused her and instructed the jury to disregard her comments.

Before the breakdown she was questioned closely by Graham regarding "some kind of trouble" she had in 1937 when she was at Cape Cod.

Q—Did you tell Mr. Clem that if he would help you out of that trouble you would never bother

How to Make School Popular

DETROIT, March 12 (AP)—Proposals that table tennis replace algebra and that photography replace English in high school curricula were advanced by students of three suburban high schools in a forum here yesterday.

Jean Blum of Monroe, Mich., suggested also that dancing be substituted for Latin, and dramatics for history.

"If our present teachers cannot teach those subjects, they they should go to summer school and learn how," she added.

DETROIT, March 12 (AP)—John Crosley, 18, stole a stamp from a letter in a private mail box because he didn't have postage for a letter to his girl in Tennessee, he told Commissioner George M. Read Tuesday. Read ordered him held for the federal grand jury on a charge of theft from the mails.

'Confession' Phoned By Triangle Killer

CHICAGO, March 12—Search for Walter Appelt, young husband accused by authorities of shooting to death a successful rival for his wife's love, turned today to Shumway, Ill.

MRS. WANETA APPELT
Planned to Wed Lorenz

Appelt is wanted for the murder of Joseph Lorenz, 30, chemical engineer and former Melrose resident, who was shot with six caliber rifle bullets in the back of the head.

A warrant charging Appelt with murder was issued in felony court today.

Meanwhile, it was predicted that the accused man would surrender before he was captured. The search at Shumway came after it was reported that he was en route to a home of a brother in that city.

Joseph Lorenz

This news was given by another brother, Erwin, a Detroit policeman, who relayed an alleged telephone confession by the hunted man.

TELLS OF CONFESSION

Patrolman Appelt told Chicago police his brother had called from Bloomington, Ill., and promised to surrender. He quoted him as follows:

"I have done the worst."

Erwin asked what he meant, and was told.

"Draw your own conclusions."

THREE WOMEN BOOKIES FINED $600 IN LYNN

Three attractive Lynn women smilingly hands over $200 each today in Lynn court after they had been found guilty of "maintaining rooms for registering bets on the speed of animals, to wit, horses."

They were down first in the police journal as Catherine Johnson, Ruth Blake and Mrs. Francis J. White, but in reality, according to the records, they were Mrs. Blanche Wasilawicz, 26, of Moulton st.; Mrs. Marie J. Arsenault, 28, of Brimblecom st., and Mrs. Francis J. Kennedy, 24, of Arlington st.

Also fined $200 was Porter R. Merrill, 52, of Mall st., operator of the garage above which the alleged horse room in Silsbee st., Lynn, was run. He was charged with allowing his premises to be used illegally. Appealing, he was held in $1000 for superior court.

Police Capt. James F. Fee, who led a raiding squad into the quarters, testified that there were four locks on the door, but despite the activity of the raiders in breaking through the women were so engrossed in checking betting slips that they did not hear the officers until they were inside.

Thousands of horse and number pool slips were seized, he said.

Fatal Plant Fire Termed Accidental

NEW HAVEN, Ct., March 12 (AP)—Terming a theory of sabotage "far fetched," Coroner James J. Corrigan held today that a fire at the plant of the New Haven Quilt and Pad Co., which took the lives of 10 men "in all probability started accidentally."

The company was at that time working on United States Army contracts for 290,000 cotton comforters. The men who died and 16 who escaped were all working on the third floor of one of the company's three buildings.

SEEKING $50,000 in an alienation of affections suit against Emelian Kucher of Peabody, the father of her estranged husband, Mrs. Anne Kucher of Cambridge testified in Salem Superior Court that he wanted her to be his wife and kissed her with an affection far from fatherly.

Dad-in-Law Meddling Charged by Suing Wife

SALEM, March 12—Her father-in-law's interference with their married life so depressed her husband that he once attempted suicide, it was testified in superior court here today by Mrs. Anne Kucher as she returned to the stand to press her $50,000 alienation of affections suit.

Mrs. Kucher, now of Cambridge but formerly of Peabody, is suing Emelian Kucher, father of her estranged husband, John Kucher, on the ground he sought to break up her marriage because he himself coveted her love.

On the stand today she told Judge Edward T. Broadhurst in a jury-waived session of several additional occasions when her father-in-law burst into the bedroom of her husband and herself without bothering to knock.

In contrast to her previous testimony, however, these other interruptions by the elder Kucher were characterized as a desire for the companionship of his son.

"I HEARD A CRASH"

It was in August 1938, Mrs. Kucher said, after they had been interrupted by the father while discussing personal affairs, that John suddenly dashed for the bathroom.

"I heard a crash," Mrs. Kucher testified, "and rushed in to find him on the floor and a bottle of rubbing alcohol in the basin of the sink. I helped him to the bed.

"John was sobbing and begged his father 'please give us a break. Leave us alone. Don't start an argument over every little thing. There is no need of all these arguments.'"

Previous to this, she told the court, she and her husband had been ordered from the Peabody home by the father and had gone to live in Salem. She said that they stayed there for five months ending in May, 1938.

One evening she returned home, she said, to find her husband had left with his clothing.

CITES DEMANDS

That night after her husband asked her to return to live with his father Kucher told his son, Mrs. Kucher testified:

"'John you know I can give you much more than she can. You know you can't get along without me.'"

Prior to these happenings, in November of 1937, the suing wife said, the father demanded after one of several arguments about his bursting into their bedroom:

"'Why can't I be alone with my son?'"

The case is continuing.

Gen. Drum Visits Camp on Cape

Lieut.-Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commanding the first Army, visited camp Edwards today on an informal tour of inspection. He conferred briefly at headquarters and then was driven over the area.

The visit of Gen. Drum, commanding the First Army, was mostly informal, however, and involved merely an inspection of routine training. For that reason, he requested that the YD men skip the usual military honors.

Still, it was somewhat of an occasion—the first visit of the high ranking army general to the camp since the famed YD division moved there, and accordingly the doughboys and rookies were putting their best foot forward.

In the meantime, at Fort Devens, too, New England's first ski troops began experimental maneuvers. Some of them are southerners who never saw snow until this winter.

The new unit, made up of 53 men and three officers, is being trained by skiing experts and is equipped with Garand rifles, light machine guns, 60 mm mortars and a 37 mm tank gun.

One of the largest groups to be inducted in a single day at the Columbus Ave. Armory, 365 young men today were being outfitted and processed at military camp. During the examinations 58 other men were rejected and six held for further scrutiny.

Meanwhile Massachusetts selective service headquarters announced today the draft board apportionment through which 125 Negroes will be called for duty with the Army under the seventh draft call in this state. Boston will furnish 73.

Draftee Gets Fine Revoked

On the plea that he had spent his final week's pay for toilet articles following his induction into the Army, Benjamin Sealy, Jr., 24, of Union st., Cambridge, had a $3 speeding fine revoked today in Brookline court and the charge placed on file.

Judge Daniel A. Rollins found Sealy guilty despite a spirited argument by the young man that the car he was driving was new and equipped with a governor. This, he contended, prevented operation of the car at between 45 and 45 miles per hour as police charged.

The foreign minister was accompanied by an 11-man staff.

$8500 PAID TO LYONS, ARCHITECT TESTIFIES

He alone "kicked back" about $8500 to Mayor John W. Lyons, or Paul Mannos, Brookline contractor, James E. McLaughlin, Chestnut Hill architect, testified today.

This charge was made in Middlesex superior court where the Cambridge mayor and his co-defendant were on trial.

Gray-haired and well dressed, McLaughlin took the stand before a jam-packed second day courtroom in the Middlesex superior section. Many politicians were present.

Dist. Atty. Bradford asked the witness about how much his firm had received for architectural fees.

"Approximately $27,000," was the reply.

At the same time, McLaughlin, mentioning a "Mr. Holtz," whom he did not identify, spoke of having collected some money through this gentleman.

COUNTS AMENDED

The district attorney took up the questioning after Judge Harold P. Williams passed on some amendments to the 66 counts of the nine indictments against the defendants.

Q—You received payments from the city of Cambridge in 1939? A—Yes.

Q—When was the first? A—On Dec. 9, 1938. The amount was $1087.24.

"Was this on the (East Cambridge branch) library project?" he was asked.

He said it was.

Q—Did you have any conversation with Mannos? A—Yes.

Q—What was it? A—I telephoned Mr. Mannos and told him I was ready to pay the one third "kick-back."

Then what did he do? the witness was asked.

TELLS OF PAYMENTS

He said he made this "kick-back" payment at Mannos' office in the Statler building. It was $362.41 in cash, he explained.

McLaughlin said he had been paid by the city of Cambridge $1490.50 on the library project and had "kicked back" $563.50, also in cash.

On Jan. 3, 1939, he said he had been paid $150.55 and had turned in $50.85.

On Feb. 13, he added, he had been paid $349.90, and after a payment of $322.52, had "kicked back" $224.12.

McLaughlin was put through a series of questions which extended to the summer of 1939 by Dist.-Atty. Bradford, and told of dates of receiving payments from the City of Cambridge and always "kicking back" the one-third to Mannos.

Under cross examination, Atty. Herbert F. Callahan asked McLaughlin woh had made the arrangements for him first to meet Mannos.

"The man is now deceased," McLaughlin said.

"I have no objections if you write the name," Atty. Callahan said.

McLaughlin wrote the name on a piece of paper, gave it to Judge Williams, who read it and gave it to Dist.-Atty. Bradford, who in turn read it and passed it on to Callahan.

Under direct examination, when Bradford had asked McLaughlin the name of the sub-contractor who had done the painting in the Cambridge Maternity Hospital and the Cambridge Library, McLaughlin had answered:

"J. Mannos and Co."

BEAL IS CALLED

During the entire morning, Mayor Lyons has sat quietly at the bar. He was dressed in a neat gray business suit. Mannos, sitting beside him, was attired in gray.

After McLaughlin was dismissed, John W. Beal, former State commissioner of public works, took the stand.

CALLED MAYOR LYONS

Beal said he lived in Hanover, was a member of J. Williams Beal Sons, architects, and had been an architect for 30 years.

He testified that in the spring of 1938 he had become interested in architectural work to be done for the City of Cambridge, and had first met Anthony Spinelli.

"I had never met the mayor at that time," he cried, in response to dihect questioning by Bradford, "but I called him on the telephone and made an appointment to see him. I talked to him about work to be done on the Cambridge Tuberculosis Hospital, and the Mayor said he'd keep me in mind.

TALKED WITH MANNOS

"Later I saw the mayor again, and I inspected the hospital, and finally I got the contract."

"Was there any question about getting engineers for the job?" Bradford asked.

"When I was at the mayor's office I said I wanted the R. G. Kimball Co. as engineers, because they had worked on the hospital before and were entitled to it. The Mayor agreed. I engaged the Kimball Co."

"What was the cost of the job?"

"About $400,000."

"When did you meet Mr. Mannos?"

"I had known him before. He had nothing to do with my getting the contract. Shortly after I got it he called me up and congratulated me. Later he called to ask how the plans were coming and invited me to call at his office."

ASKED FOR OTHER JOBS

"When was this?"

"In the summer of 1938. I went to Mannos' office of the Canton Mutual Liability Co. and he asked me again about the plans. He said it was the first job of the new administration, and other projects would come later. I said I would do a good job and wanted to be considered for the other jobs. Mannos said he had nothing to to with all that, the mayor ran it."

"Then?"

"I saw the mayor later and told him the same thing."

"Did you ever see Lyons and Mannos together?"

"Yes. Once when I called at the mayor's room in the Copley-Plaza Hotel, Mannos opened the door and told me the mayor would be right out."

"Who was the general contractor on the tuberculosis hospital?"

"Antohny Spinelli."

"Did you ever receive reimbursement from the City of Cambridge as architect and for engineer's services?"

"Yes."

Beal then identified a check made out by his company Feb. 4, 1939, to the R. D. Kimball Co. for $3326.40, shown him by Bradford.

"Did you ever pay out a fee for the architect to anyone?" he was asked.

"Yes," he said. "To Spinelli, at the end of May, 1939."

Soldier Buried; Probe Is Pushed'

Funeral services for Fernand Trudel, 22, were held in Gardner today, as the police investigation of his unexplained injuries and death switched to Fort Warren, Portland, Me., where the volunteer draftee had been assigned for military training before he was sent to Fort Banks, Winthrop.

Detective Sergt. oseph B. Fallon of the Boston police said he wanted to question everyone who had been in contact with Trudel before he was transferred to Ft. Banks for mental observation.

Meanwhile, in Gardner funeral services for Trudel were held in the Church of the Holy Rosary. Burial was in Notre Dame Cemetery.

March 17 Bill Signing Delayed

Governor Saltonstall said today that he would consult Chief Justice John T. Higgins of the Superior Court before signing a bill to make March 17 a legal holiday in Suffolk County.

The Chief Executive's legislative counsel, Joseph R. Cotton, said that the Governor was anxious to clear up specific points concerning operation of the bill. The measure passed this week by the Legislature would give school children and public in the county a holiday, but would permit industry and commerce to operate.

Roosevelt Hopes For Vacation Soon

WASHINGTON, March 12 (AP)—President Roosevelt would like to take a vacation, and now that the lease-lend bill has been signed into law he may do so.

In response to a question at his press conference yesterday, the President remarked that he was just crazy to go away for awhile, that he still had something of a cold in his nose, wanted to get some sunshine, and would go as soon as he got a chance.

Mrs. Winant Flies For Bermuda Vacation

NEW YORK, March 12 (AP)—Mrs. John G. Winant left for a Bermuda vacation today, expressing hope she soon would be able to join her husband, new U. S. ambassador to Britain, in London.

Her plans for going abroad, she said, were still indefinite, "but I hope to go over some time next month."

97 FALSE ALARMS

There were 97 false fire alarms here in February, the largest monthly number since last November, Supt. Edward W. Fallon reported today. More than one-third of them were sounded between 6 p. m. and midnight, he said.

Quincy Woman's Kin Dies in Hospital Leap

ALBANY, N. Y., March 12 (INS)—While 15 other patients watched in horror, a powerful 185-pound lumberjack plunged to death from the third floor of Memorial Hospital today, after wrestling on the ledge for five minutes with hospital attaches.

The victim, Henry Roberts, 28, of Riverdale, N. J., died of a crushed chest.

The victim's nearest relative, Mrs. Mary Roberts, lives in Quincy, Mass.

Another French Ship Seized by British

ALGECIRAS, Spain, March 12 (AP)—Another French freighter intercepted by British warships was taken into Gibraltar harbor today. The ship, about 1500 tons, is one of a number of French vessels which have been escorted to Gibraltar in recent weeks.

In Vichy, Monday, Vice-Premier Admiral Jean Darlan of France warned the British that the French navy would provide convoys for its merchantmen unless the British ceased to interfere with shipping.

Woman, 80, Rescued at Malden Fire

Trapped in her sleep and close to death, an elderly woman today was carried from a burning house on Main st., Malden, while three other persons were probably saved from a similar fate by a barking dog.

Removed to Malden Hospital, the victim, Miss Margaret Crane, 80, who lived alone on the top floor of the two-story dwelling, was named on the danger list.

Ginger, pet of Fred P. Wilcox, was the dog credited with the hero'e role in the two-alarm blaze, damage in which was estimated at $6500.

Repeatedly, the dog barked to rouse Wilcox and other neighbors who saw flames shooting from the Main st. dwelling. Dashing to the first floor, Wilcox pounded on the door and awakened Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Rogers and their daughter, Ardyce, 23, who fled to the street.

He attempted to reach the second floor where Miss Crane resided, but was driven back by flames.

Fireman William Barrett found the aged victim unconscious in bed and carried her out.

Fireman Fred Whalen was also overcome by smoke, but was revived at the scene and sent back to the station. Deputy Fire Chief Phillip J. McCarthy said the fire apparently was started by an overheated furnace.

More Strikes Halt U.S. Defense Work

By the Associated Press

A strike of CIO workers at the 10-story plant of the Aluminum Company of America in Edgewater, N. J., today halted production of defense materials vital to eastern aircraft factories.

Abruptly at 1:40 a. m., less than two hours after Vincent McKenna, president of Local 16, Aluminum Workers of America, and other delegates to a conference with company officials in New Kensington, Pa., had returned to union headquarters, the midnight shift walked out.

A picket line was established. At 8 a. m., the second shift, McKenna declared, failed to report to work. The union head said nearly 2000 of 3000 employes had ceased work, and the night shift of another 1000 would follow suit at 4 p. m.

The dispute centered over overtime pay for men whose 40-hour week includes Sunday work.

WATCH MINE PARLEY

Meanwhile, a government ace labor trouble shooter—John R. Steelman—was dispatched to Milwaukee for special conferences on the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co. strike. The CIO-called strike has delayed production on $45,000,000 worth of national defense orders for seven weeks.

Thomas Finn, another U. S. conciliator, was assigned to try to settle a fresh dispute between the CIO Steel Workers Organizing Committee and the Bethlehem Steel Corp. at a Lackawanna, N. Y., plant which was the site of a brief strike last month.

Labor men attached wide significance to the negotiations in progress at New York between the CIO-United Mine Workers of America and the nation's major bituminous coal operators concerning a new two-year contract for 450,000 miners.

BUS STRIKE CONTINUES

New York city transportation continued to be seriously hampered by the strike of 3500 employes of two large bus companies for pay increases and shorter hours. The tie-up of 1300 buses has forced 900,000 city dwellers to seek transportation by taxi or subway.

CIO steel workers remained on strike against the J. B. Brill Co. at Philadelphia, where production was at a standstill on $418,661 worth of artillery and ammunition. The strikers asked higher wages, a union shop and other concessions.

A. F. of L. building laborers struck at a $12,000,000 small arms ammunition plant being built at St. Louis, Mo., but later returned to work.

At Minneapolis efforts were on to arbitrate differences which threatened t halt production of defense equipment at two concerns—the Minneapolis-Moline Power Implement Co., and the Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Co.

CIO machinists charged that a company union had been formed at the latter firm since the CIO union submitted a new contract two weeks ago. At Minneapolis-Moline, machinists are seeking wage increases and paid vacations.

In Oakland, Cal., 2000 men went back to work in three automotive plants today, but the dispute in the Fisher body works which caused the shutdown yesterday remained unsettled.

If the dispute, involving the amount of work asked of welders, is not settled, Frank Slaby, local president of the CIO United Automobile Workers' Union, said a strike vote would be taken Thursday night.

DOROTHY, JOHN AND ANGELO KALTSOS OF ROXBURY

Court Reunites Father and Children

Judge Tries Experiment, Gives Father 2 Children

Two little Roxbury children, a brother and sister who have been separated from both father and mother since last May, were reunited today with their father, by court decree in Suffolk probate court, following a novel "probation custody" experiment worked out by Judge John V. Mahoney.

The children, Dorothy Kaltsos, 11, and Angelo, 9, have been in the care of the Boston Children's Aid Society since last May, when Judge Mahoney denied custody to both their father, John Kaltsos of Warren st., Roxbury, and his divorced wife, Mrs. Rita Kaltsos.

Judge Mahoney ruled at that time that neither parent was providing satisfactory conditions in which to bring up the children. He added, however, that if the father could show him he was entitled to care for the children and could furnish a proper environment, he would consider his petition for custody.

Several months ago, it was learned today, Judge Mahoney permitted the father to take his children, on probation and still under jurisdiction of the Children's Aid, to a new home where conditions were better than in his former place of residence. And today Judge Mahoney said he was satisfied the father could now provide a satisfactory home, and that he had proved his right to their custody.

"There has been a great improvement in conditions," Judge Mahoney said. "I will give the children to the father. But if there is any future evidence of neglect, I shall nullify this decree."

Turning to Kaltsos, Judge Mahoney added:

"I am not interested in you or your wife, but I am keenly interested in the happiness of these children. They are under my care, too, and their happiness is of primary importance."

Judge Mahoney ruled that the mother of the children shall be allowed to see them at reasonable times.

Canada Issues New U. S. Passport Rule

OTTAWA, Ont., March 12 (AP)—Passport regulations for Canadians desiring to visit the United States will be changed April 1, External Affairs Department disclosed today.

Issuance of special one-year passports for $1 is to be discontinued and passports with renewals, good for 10 years, will be issued. These will cost $3 when first taken out and will be good for two years. They may be renewed at two-year intervals at a cost of $1 for each renewal.

Meeting Adjourns To Battle Farm Fire

WESTMORELAND, N. H., March 12—Voters attended an adjourned town meeting here today—hopeful there will be no fires.

Citizens gathered for their annual conclave yesterday but Moderator Paul King suddenly announced: "The meeting is adjourned." All rushed out to the farm of Alfred Chickering, where, with a bucket brigade, they succeeded in halting flames just short of a barn housing 125 head of cattle.

Newton Boy Gang's Loot Topped by 1880 Bike

With their loot including an ancient bicycle, manufactured in 1880, a gang of boys, ranging from 14 to 16 years of age, have been rounded up by Newton police in the declared stamping out of a juvenile "crime wave."

Although only the bicycle and an ancient revolver were recovered in a shack used by the youngsters as a clubhouse in Beecher ter., Newton Center, police said the boys admitted many small thefts over a period of months.

Much of $300 worth of stock stolen in the past year from a department store is believed to have been taken by the boys and sold.

The bicycle is one that was manufactured by Arthur M. Gooch, 86, of Warren st., Newton Center, and at the time of its manufacture more than half a century ago was valued at $160. This and the old revolver were taken from his barn.

The seven boys were given an informal hearing by the Newton probation officer, three of them being released to their parents as probationers.

On March 21 the remaining four will be in Newton juvenile court charged with assault and battery, as a result of stories by the released boys that they were beaten and bullied into stealing.

SCULPTRESS NAMED TO ART COMMISSION

Governor Saltonstall today named Miss Katharine Lane of Gloucester to the State Art Commission to take the place of the noted sculptor, Cyrus Dallin.

Mr. Dallin had been a member of the commission for many years, but at the time of his reappointment last fall he did not take up his duties because of advancing age. He will be 80 in November.

Miss Lane is a Greater Boston society woman who has won an outstanding place in sculpture.

Her appointment was one of four that the Governor made. Others were:

Dr. John J. Egan, Jr., of Gloucester, assistant medical examiner of the first district of Essex County; Dr. Richard W. Sheehy of Winchester, assistant medical examiner of the fourth district of Middlesex County.

Frederick L. Parker of Westfield, prominent business executive, to the State emergency finance board to take the place of the late Daniel F. Doherty of Springfield.

Steel Workers Seek New Pact

NEW YORK, March 12 (AP)—Philip Murray, president of the CIO, notified a group of United States Steel Corporation subsidiaries today that the Steel Workers Organizing Committee wished to open negotiations looking toward changes in their present labor agreements.

Identical letters were sent to officials of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp., Pittsburgh; American Bridge Co., Pittsburgh; Boyle Manufacturing Co., Los Angeles; National Tube Co., Pittsburgh; Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Co., Birmingham; Universal Atlas Cement Co., both Duluth, Minn., and Buffington, Ind.; Scully Steel Products Co., St. Paul; American Steel and Wire Co., Cleveland; Columbia Steel Co., San Francisco; Oil Well Supply Co., Dallas.

'Too Old' Stenog, 45, Dies in 15-Story Leap

NEW YORK, March 12 (INS)—Beccause "office girls are no longer wanted when they get old," Anna L. Uhlman, 45, leaped to her death from the 15th floor of the Cotton Exchange Building.

A note weighted down on the fire balcony with her purse which contained only six cents, directed police to her one-room apartment where "you will find another letter explaining everything."

Police found this second letter and also one sealed and addressed to the federal bureau of investigation. The police missive read:

"Due to the fact that office girls are no longer wanted when they get old, I couldn't support myself and I didn't want to go on relief.

"I've been a secretary in this city for many years," the note said. "In English, German and French. My father was Swiss, my mother German. I want the police to notify my sister, Mrs. Henry Ploeinno, 412 Cadieu rd., Grosse Point, Detroit.

"Break the news to them gently.

"I want my body cremated and if possible scatter my ashes from the Bear Mountain bridge. I like the hills up there and the soft line of those hills gave me comfort in my sorrows."

DETROIT, March 12 (INS)—Detroit relatives of Anna L. Uhlman, 45-year-old New York woman who jumped to her death from a 15th floor window, today blamed the war for the linguist's stenographer's death.

Her sister, Mrs. Johanna Ploeinno, of Grosse Pointe Park, said her sister's knowledge of German, French and Italian had always gained her employment with foreign importing houses.

"When war broke out, and practically ended German imports, my sister was unable to find a job," said Mrs. Ploeinno. "We brought her back to Detroit with us shortly afterwards and she became a public stenographer. She could not make any money and refused to live off my husband, so she went back to New York last April."

Little Girl, Brother End Wanderings

After staying out for a whole night, little Barbara Kennedy, 10, and her brother, James, 8, of Prescott st., Roxbury, were back safely at home today, thus ending a wide police search.

The children, whose father is employed at the new United States base in Newfoundland, told their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James Kennedy, that they had been "visiting relatives in South Boston."

Four Days to Go On Tax Returns

With but four more days to go before Federal income tax deadline, Collector Thomas B. Hassett today opened additional quarters for the public on the fourth floor at the Federal building. It is room 713.

It was further announced that taxpayers have been coming across earlier than ever this year. During February, 179,565 persons got their 1940 taxes over with—compared to 81,205 who filed early a year ago.

The deadline for filing comes Saturday, with returns bearing a postmark as late as midnight acceptable.

Million Dollar California Factory Stolen Bit by Bit

LOS ANGELES, March 12 (INS)—Much to their surprise and indignation, the Los Angeles County board of supervisors learned today that a million dollar glass factory had been stolen—building, machinery and raw materials—from its site at Torrance.

Vandals have taken it away, piece by piece, George Roth, a tax counselor, told them. The factory was deeded to the State in 1931 for $50,000 in delinquent taxes, he said, and since then vandals have demolished the plant in a "mysterious way."

Stokowski Quits to Serve

PHILADELPHIA, March 12 (AP)—Leopold Stokowski and the Philadelphia Orchestra which he lifted to prominence in the musical world have reached a parting of the ways—after a colorful 29-year association.

The silver-haired, 59-year-old maestro announced at Chattanoogs, Tenn., last night that he is relinquishing his role as co-conductor of the Symphony Orchestra "to hold myself free and available to serve the government and our country."

"I wrote the board of directors about two weeks ago thanking them for offering me a contract for next season," the conductor said in a statement, "but that in view of the national emergency which daily is growing more serious, I would like for a period to hold myself free and available to serve the government and our country."

Wallace Beery Is Shy On New Romance Quiz

LOS ANGELES, March 12 (AP)—If Wallace Beery, screen bad man, has a new romance, he's shy as a schoolboy about it.

Mrs. Loreene Buffum Robinson, wealthy widow and daughter of a Long Beach, Cal., department store owner, flew from New York to join Beery in a courtroom yesterday.

The conversation between them and a reporter went like this:

Reporter—"Is this a romance?"

Berry, with a bashful grin—"You'll have to ask her."

Mrs. Robinson—"We won't admit w're going to be married and we won't deny it."

Reporter, trying a new tack—"Have you set a date for the ceremony?"

Beery: "Oh, no—you can't fool me with that one. I'm too smart for that." Then he added: "I probably ask her every day, and she probably refuses me every day—but I'm not giving up. I'm no fool."

Beery, twice married and twice divorced, by Gloria Swanson, silent screen star, and Rita Gilliman. Mrs. Gillman, now Mrs. Albert Foyt, testified yesterday in Beery's defense in a $600,000 false arrest suit filed against the actor by Allan B. Whitney, 28, whom Beery befriended when Whitney was 13 years old. The latter was arrested outside the actor's home in November, 1939.

She and Beery said Whitney had posed as Wallace Beery, Jr., and his actions had caused them concern at the time kidnap threats were made against Carol Ann, one of Beery's two adopted daughters.

Six Italian Thrusts Repulsed by Greeks

ATHENS, March 12 (AP)—Italians using the biggest force they have thus far employed, attacked at six different points in Albania yesterday after careful artillery preparation, but all thrusts wer repulsed, Greek military dispatches said today.

One entire Blackshirt battalion attacking yesterday afternoon was declared to have been wiped out with the exception of 187 men taken as prisoners.

Captured Italians said one of the Blackshirt units taking part in the operations was the "Bruno Mussolini" Battalion, named for a son of Premier Mussolini.

DRIVE ON TEPELENI

Greeks said they w ere able not only to throw the Fascists back, but to advance their own lines in the Tepeleni sector.

The Greeks have been attempting to take Tepeleni since December and have reported repeated gains there, but have yet to take the town.—Editor's note.

RAF headquarters announced that five Italian planes were downed and others severely damaged in a batle over the central Albanian sector yesterday.

Italian troops and motor transports were again attacked on the Gallava-Buzi road, but the pilots said they were unable to determine the results because of low clouds.

MANY WOUNDED

Greeks said Italian wounded were so numerous that stretcher bearers were unable to clear the battlefield. Twenty Italian officers were listed among the prisoners.

In one Fascist battalion the Greeks said only 70 officers and 70 men survived out of a total of 738 men.

A Greek spokesman announced earlier that 450 more Italian prisoners had been taken in Albania, and said some of the captives estimated Italy's losses in the campaign at 130,000 men.

So. Quincy Fire Drives Out 8

Two baby brothers were carried to safety by their parents today as eight persons were driven to the street by fire which caused an estimated $500 damage to a two-family house in Payne st., South Quincy.

According to fire officiale the bleze started in the living room of the apartment occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Clayton C. Bickerstaff, who carried their sons, Wayne(22 months, and Donald, five, to safety.

Also driven out were Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. York and their two daughters, Marie, 20, and Marjorie, 17. The fire, which was confined to the Bickerstaff living room, was blamed on a faulty heater.

This is another in a series of letters from Britons to friends and relatives in Greater Boston.

From: Mrs. William Sylvester, Turkdean, Northleach, Cheltenham.

To: Mrs. Percy H. Vickery, 109 Highland ave., Somerville, Mass.

My dear Percy,

At present it is quiet here. London has not had a raid for seven nights. Mollie has been home on sick leave. Went back this morning for observation.

She has had such an awful time, really, and has been overworked too, poor darling. By the way, she has fixed round about next Xmas for her wedding, as she qualifies for her marriage bonus of 50 pounds in October.

We are sure America will help us all she can. I can't understand why you get such scanty news about us.

Cheltenham was bombed not long ago, but not a great deal of damage was done. Of course, we get a good many stray bombs in the country, but we are safter than in the town.

I have children from Liverpool and London in my school. They settle down very well in the country and I'm looking forward to taking them for nature walks to see birds' nests and pick wild flowers in the spring.

Poor things, they were very frightened when they came and wanted to hide under the desks when a plane came over. We get a good many, as it's a practice area.

I'm billeting officer for the village, so I know what good work the American Red Cross are doing. I can get anything I ask for in the shape of clothing for them. Some are very poor, but they look better already. All are well clothed, thanks to America!

We listened in to President Roosevelt. We are also glad he got in again. Mr. Wendell Willkie is over here now. He seems very friendly to Britain.

Everyone is very brave and all are doing something to defend our country, Mr. Churchill is a great man and it's so cheering to hear him speak, always. It gives us heart. I do wish we were nearer!

Your loving sister,

NELLIE.

NAZIS REPORT HUGE BRITISH SHIP LOSSES

BERLIN, March 12 (AP)—Attacks on Britain's supply lanes during the four months from November through February resulted in the destruction of 2,037,000 tons of merchant shipping space, the German high command said today.

Of the total, the German navy was said to have sunk 1,524,000 tons and the air force, 513,000 tons.

"Furthermore," the communique said, "the air force seriously damaged 175 enemy merchant ships by bomb hits."

It added that enemy losses from mines were not included.

The high command also said 11 British planes had been destroyed between March 6 and March 11, during which time German losses were put at nine planes.

10,000 Persons See 10 Chinese Executed

PEIPING, March 12 (AP)—Ten Chinese were executed by shooting today near the Temple of Heaven.

Upwards of 10,000 persons witnessed their deaths, the second civil executions in Peiping since the outbreak of the Chinese-Japanese war. Four of the Chinese had been convicted of robbing a tax office; crimes of the others were not disclosed.

NORSE SHIP 'WAR VICTIM'

BERLIN, March 12 (AP)—DNB (official German news agency) reported in a dispatch from Oslo, German-occupied Norway, today that the 1152-ton Norwegian freighter Mira became a "war victim" last week while in British service. Most of her crew was saved, it said.

RING HUNTED IN BOMBING OF BRITISH ENVOY

ISTANBUL, Turkey, March 12 (AP)—Turkish police and military authorities declared today they were searching for a "Balkan bomb ring" they believe behind an attempt to assassinate George W. Rendel, British minister who left German-occupied Bulgaria.

An International News Service dispatch from Instanbul said Turkish police had arrested four suspects.—Editor's Note.

Four persons were killed and upwards of 20 injured last night, but Rendel escaped when a bomb wrecked the lobby of the Pera Plaza hotel, where the British diplomat had brought his party from Sofia by train only a few minutes before.

Investigators who indicated they foresaw possible "serious diplomatic repercussions" from the bombing examined passengers on all trains, and questioned all persons wishing to leave Istanbul for Bulgaria.

Police said the dead were two Turkish detectives, a woman guest at the hotel whose body was mangled so badly she could not be identified immediately, and a Miss Ellis, who was a stenographer in the British legation in Sofia.

Six were injured severely, among them a Miss Armstrong, also a stenographer of the British legation. Her legs were injured so badly doctors said they would have to be amputated.

Survivors declared they believed the bomb had been placed aboard Rendel's train in Sofia — perhaps timed to explode in Turkey.

Turkish newspapers, under government supervision, confined their account of the explosion to a 15-word communique.

Police found fragments of the bomb and said it might have been set off by an acid fuse, rather than a mechanical timing device.

British Planes Rain Bombs on Tripoli

CAIRO, March 12 (INS)—British planes heavily bombed Tripoli on Monday night, attacking harbor buildings and shipping and causing a fire at a jetty where loud explosions resulted, an RAF communique said today.

Other planes raided an enemy airdrome in Tripolitania, destroying two planes on the ground and damaging others, the announcement said. All British planes returned safely.

How many days in Lent?

"40" says the calendar, "365" says the fishing industry.

That's because fish, once thought of primarily as a dish for Fridays and Lent has now become a year-round favorite.

Chief factors in this change in America's eating habits were the introduction of the fillet and quick freezing — both pioneered by this organization. They made ocean fish with fresh-caught flavor as easy to buy in Denver as Boston.

Modern methods afloat and ashore, national distribution and 40-Fathom advertising in newspapers, magazines and radio are steadily increasing the demand for New England's famous seafoods. All of which means better business for the port of Boston.

French Modify Religious Laws In Schools

VICHY, France, March 12 (AP)—The French government today re-established complete academic neutrality in religion by modifying recent laws which orientated the schools toward closer religious study.

The original laws were enacted last December under sponsorship of Jacques Chevalier, minister of public education. The changes were suggested by his successor, Jerome Carcopino.

Under the revised plan it is specified that, instead of studying "duty toward God," students would study "respect for family, country, thoughts of others and various religious beliefs." Instead of the "notion of God," there will be substituted "Christian civilization."

Another change forbade religious instruction by religious authorities in the public schools. Children still will be permitted to take time from their regular school hours to obtain religious instruction.

Fully-Loaded Italian Troopship Is Sunk

LONDON, March 12 (AP)—A "heavily-laden" Italian troop transport" has been torpedoed and sunk by a British submarine, the Admiralty said last night. The announcement did not disclose the scene, other than the Mediterranean.

The transport was identified as "of the Sicilia class of 9648 tons."

(Lloyd's shipping register lists a Sicilia of this tonnage, but makes no reference to a "class" of such vessels.)

Russia Gives Turks No-Attack Pledge

ANKARA, Turkey, March 12 (AP)—A Russian promise that Turkey need fear no attack from the Soviet should she enter the war has been given to the Turkish ambassador to Moscow by V. Molotoff, the Russian premier and foreign commissar, a competent source declared today.

The same informant added that the Germans were raising long-range guns in the port of Varna in Nazi-occupied Bulgaria, with the apparent intention of controlling Black sea shipping.

Almost simultaneously with these reports came a disclosure by a foreign diplomatic source that three German warplanes flying over Turkish fortifications along the Bulgarian frontier were fired upon yesterday by Turkish anti-aircraft guns.

The Nazis unhit, were said to have aped back over the territory of Bulgaria, where German troops are pointed at the frontiers of both Greece and Turkey, respectively Britain's belligerent and non-belligerent allies.

Near the Turkish frontier alone, the Germans stood an estimated 125,000 strong.

Yugoslavia Holds Out For Friendship Pact

BELGRADE, March 12 (INS)—Yugoslavia was still holding out for a compromise "friendship" pact with Germany today despite renewed Nazi pressure for Yugoslavian adherence to the Axis-Japanese military alliance.

More Yugoslavian troops were reported en route to the frontier and army leaders were represented as determined that this kingdom should not become another "Bulgaria."

Cat Buried 4 Days By Bomb at King's Palace Rescued

LONDON, March 12 (AP)—A blue Persian cat—hungry but uninjured—was rescued after being buried four days in the wreckage of a lodgehouse demolished by a bomb at Buckingham Palace.

Brockton Pays Last Tribute to Firemen

BROCKTON, March 12—Eight funeral services added further sorrow to this grief-stricken city today as last respects were paid to firemen who lost their lives in the Strand Theater holocaust on Monday.

Schools, public buildings, theaters, stores, restaurants and liquor marts were closed for the day. Traffic lights were covered, neon signs unlighted, and every flag was at half-staff.

Two more funerals were to be held this afternoon, and two tomorrow morning.

Periods of silence were observed in banks. Work in industrial plants that remained open was carried on behind drawn curtains.

As the corteges went slowly through the streets, pedestrians stood with bared heads and all motor traffic stopped. Many spectators were in tears.

LEGION AIDES

American Legion Post No. 35 conducted military services for four members who were among the 12 dead.

Today's services were held in three churches at three-quarter-hour intervals.

At St. Patrick's Church, the Rt Rev. Msgr. Walter Gill presided at three funeral services, and the Rev. Lawrence Morrisroe, who had administered the last rites of the church to the dead men at the disastrous fire, was deacon.

Fire stations were manned by volunteer firemen from out-of-town so that the local men might pay their final respects to their dead comrades. Not a fire alarm sounded during the services.

At St. Patrick's Church a military funeral was conducted for Martin E. Lipper, 40, of Hamilton st. Services were held there also for Dennis Murphy of Warren ave., and a second military service was held for Frederick F. Kelley, 38, of Exchange st.

The mass for Dennis Murphy was celebrated by his cousin, the Rev. Thomas Murphy, S. J., of Holy Cross.

In St. Edward's Church a military funeral was given Henry F. Sullivan, 37, of Mulberry st., and to J. Malcolm McNaill, 40, also of Mulberry st. Rites for Matthew McGeary, 42, of Coburn st., were also held there.

Capt. John F. Carroll, 52, of Lyman st., and William J. Murphy, 25, of Kingman st., were buried from St. Coleman's Church.

Burials were at Calvary, Avon and Randolph Cemeteries.

FIREMEN BEARERS

Firemen were pallbearers at all the services, and assisted at the military funerals, where members of the Legion Post were active pallbearers.

Lieut. Raymond A. Mitchell, 45, of Martin st., and Roy A. McKeragan of Green pl., will be buried this afternoon, and Daniel C. O'Brien, 43, of Division st., and George Collins of Wilmington st., will be buried tomorrow.

All church services were crowded with sorrowing relatives in this city of mourning.

Each cortege passed at least one Brockton fire station, darkened with crepe.

Capt. Carroll's passed the Campello station, where he had commanded, and from which four men had lost their lives.

MAYOR AT SERVICES

Mayor Fred D. Rowe, members of the City Council and Fire Chief Frank F. Dickinson attended each of the services.

So still was the city that the sound of an automobile horn echoed and re-echoed for blocks.

Democrats Report $414,617 Unpaid Bills

WASHINGTON, March 12 (AP)—The Democratic national committee reported to the clerk of the House today that on Feb. 28 it had unpaid obligations from the 1940 presidential campaign totalling $414,617.

Bills for hotel service, broadcasts and campaign buttons were among the major outstanding obligations.

The report showed the committee had a cash balance on Jan. 1 of $16,012 and received contributions amounting to $103,514 during the first two months of this year. Disbursements during the same period totalled $99,908.

Big State Bond Issue Fought

Calling for a delay "on all fiscal fronts" except appropriations necessary to meet federal highway grants which expire June 1, the Massachusetts Federation of Taxpayers' Ass'ns called for elimination of $1,800,000 bond issue proposed by Gov. Saltonstall.

Norman MacDonald, executive director of the federation, told the legislative ways and means committee reasons for asking a delay included possible change in the State's fiscal year and possible 100 per cent U. S. grants for strategic military highways in Massachusetts.

The need for more revenue if the State acquires the Boston Airport and the possibility Gov. Saltonstall's estimate of gasoline tax income was low were also cited as reasons for delaying action by MacDonald.

MUFFLER IS PUT ON HUB NOISES

Police started Boston off in its new role as a noiseless American city today with about 25 "friendly warnings" and the promise that the new anti-noise ordinance will be followed up with $10 fines later.

For the time being—until residents get used to the idea of tuning down their radioes and keep their dogs and parrots a bit more decorous—police are going to be quite gentle.

But after about a 10-day period the anti-noise enforcement will be a reality. Officers reported that those who were told they were violating the new law took it all quite humbly and promised to try and do better.

The new city ordinance came, after years of battle, with Mayor Tobin's approval of City Council action.

First off, it forbids the sounding of a horn or signal device on an automobile, motorcycle, bus, street car or other vehicle, except as a danger signal, for any unnecessary or unreasonable time if it can be heard at a distance of 100 feet.

Next in line is the playing of a radio, phonograph or any musical instrument in such manner as to disturb the quiet, comfort or repose of persons in any dwelling, hotel or other type of residence if plainly heard at a distance of 50 feet.

Dog and parrot owners should give this prohibition a look, for it reads:

"The keeping of any animal, or bird, which by biting or by causing frequent or long continued noise shall disturb the quiet, comfort or repose of any person in the vicinity."

Blowing of steam whistles and discharge of the exhaust of a steam engine, stationary engine, motor vehicle, motorboat or outboard motor is taboo, except through a muffler or other device.

Welfare Pay Day Set for Saturday

Because the March 17 holiday threatened to interfere with payments to several thousand needy on Boston welfare rolls Mayor Tobin today ordered three welfare offices to reamin open for payments on Saturaday.

It was pointed out at City Hall that welfare offices in East Boston, South Boston and Back Bay would be closed on Monday as a result of the recently approved bill legalizing the holiday in Suffolk County. Monday is the regular day for such paymente.

NAZIS SEE U. S. SET TO GRAB BRITISH RUINS

By PIERRE J. HUSS

International News Service Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, March 12 (INS)—The lease-lend bill is designed to enter America in the European war as an active combatant in order that she can inherit the wreckage which Nazi Germany will leave of the British empire, Wilhelmstrasse officials charged today.

Far from being a measure to uphold the Monroe Doctrine, the lease-lend bill marks its abandonment, Nazi foreign office officials asserted. The United States, they charged, has now undertaken to become policeman of the world.

AGAIN WARNS U. S. SHIPS

Chancellor Hitler's warning that all American ships bearing aid to Britain which come into the range of German torpedo tubes will be sunk without notice was reiterated.

"It must be realized that he who enters the German blockade zone already lends himself to participation in the war and will be treated accordingly," Wilhelmstrasse officials emphasized.

"If ships or men appear within that zone they automatically fall within the category of military activity on behalf of England and will have no excuse to complain if struck down."

Germany prepared well in advance for all eventualities, including the lease-lend bill, it was declared.

RAPS FRANKFURTER

"We must also remind the United States that American deliveries, as the British admit, have not arrived in England in the desired quantity nor will they in the future," the Wilhelmstrasse spokesman declared.

The United States, he charged, has long sought to aggravate the European situation. He cited the recent missions of Harry L. Hopkins and Col. William J. Donovan. The charge that the White House had given Yugoslavia a guarantee against German pressure was again cited.

"The lease-lend bill is no law for defense but is aggressively designed by the persons who drafted it, including Frankfurter and his companions."

This was a reference to U. S. Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter.—Editor's Note.

Churchill Thanks U. S. For Aid Bill

LONDON, March 12 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill formally thanked the United States today for passage of the British aid bill, which he termed a "new Magna Carta . . . an inspiring act of faith."

With a United States military mission in the gallery—he later received the Americans in a private room—Churchill solemnly read the following statement to the House of Commons:

"The lease and lend bill, as the House is aware, became law yesterday when it received immediately the signature of the President. (Cheers.)

"I am sure the House would wish me to express, on their behalf and on behalf of the nation, our deep and respectful appreciation of this monument of generous and far-seeing statesmanship. (Loud cheers.))

"The most powerful democracy has, in effect, declared in solemn statute that they will devote their overwhelming industrial and financial strength to insuring the defeat of Nazism in order that nations, great and small, may live in security, tolerance and freedom. (Cheers.)

"By so doing the government and the people of the United States have, in fact, written a new magna Carta which not only has regard to the rights and laws upon which 's healthy and advancing civilization can alone be erected but also proclaims by precept and example the duty of free men and free nations, wherever they may be, to share the responsibility and burden of enforcing them."

Noisy cheers marked the close of Churchill's statement. Although the floor of Commons was filled there were only eight men in the gallery—members of the United States Army Mission here to co-ordinate American-British air plans. They were in uniform.

Blue Cross Tax Protest Studied

Federal Judge Hugh D. McLellan today was studying the unusual case of the Associated Hospital Service Corp. of Massachusetts, known as the Blue Cross, which seeks recovery of $220.68 from Collector of Internal Revenue Thomas B. Hassett.

The money, it is alleged, was illegally collected under the Social Security Act. The plaintiff contends that the association has been operated exclusively for charitable purposes, and no part of its earnings has benefited any private stockholder or individual, and that it is therefore exempt from the Social Security Act.

ROOSEVELT TELLS HOUSE HOW 7 BILLIONS BRITISH CASH WILL BE SPENT BY U. S.

production of defense articles, including the construction, acquisition, maintenance and operation of these facilities, and the acquisition of land for sites.

$200,000,000 for testing, inspecting, repairing, or otherwise putting in good working order any defense articles for the government of "any country whose defense the President deems vital to the defense of the United States."

DEBATE PLANNED

This last item presumably would be used in part to effectuate terms of the British aid law under which warships of Great Britain might be repaired in American bases.

The budget director's statement proposed that the President be allowed to transfer up to 20 per cent of any of these various sums from one category to another, but with no appropriation to be increased by that process by more than 30 per cent.

Plans, meanwhile, were formulated to rush the request through Congress.

Speaker Reyburn announced at a press conference that the big appropriation bill probably would be ready for House debate on Monday or Tuesday of next week at the latest.

"We are going to put everything else aside when a thing like that comes up," he said.

In addition to the larger items, $40,000,000 was recommended for payment of expenses to carry out purposes of the act not specified or included in the various general categories of proposed appropriations. Another $10,000,000 was recommended for administrative expenses.

HOUSE HEARS ESTIMATES

The $7,000,000,000 Budget Director Smith said, should remain available until June 30, 1943, the expiration date of the British Aid Act.

He suggested also that the President be allowed to transfer from the appropriation to the funds of various government agencies amounts equal to the value of defense articles released by those agencies to other governments, up to the total of $1,300,000,000 limit provided in the statute

Speaker Rayburn, following an unusual procedure, had the President's letter and the budget estimate read to the House.

In his letter proposing the enormouse outlay for all-out aid to countries resisting aggressions, the Chief Executive said that through the aid legislation "our country has determined to do its full part in creating an adequate arsenal of democracy."

"This great arsenal will be here in this country," he added. "It will be a bulwark of our own defense. It will be the source of the tools of defense for all democracies who are fighting to preserve themselves against aggression."

He said that defense equipment produced under the British aid law would remain under control of the United States until it was ready for disposition.

HEARING TOMORROW

The budget director's estimate apparently was in the form of legislation which could be introduced immediately. The House appropriations committee has arranged to begin hearings tomorrow on the $7,000,000,000 appropriation, and the President called a meeting for this afternoon of the government witnesses who will testify.

There was no mention in either the communication of the President or of the budget director of priorities or of the specific materials and supplies which might be sent first to such countries as Britain, Greece and China.

But the fact that planes and equipment accounted for the largest chunk of the appropriation indicated that the phase of the program would be stressed.

The size of the fund for farm, industrial and other commodities indicated, too, that the Administration intends to use the law as far as possible to prevent Britain from losing the war with the Axis powers through starvation.

WHITE HOUSE PARLEY

Maintaining the swift pace which marked enactment of the lease-lend law yesterday, Mr. Roosevelt and Budget Director Smith, got together in the White House early today to write the leter to Speaker Rayburn asking immediate appropriation of the huge sum.

The request was designed to show the world, in the words of one authority, that "Uncle Sam means business" about aiding nations fighting aggression.

Mr. Roosevelt called to the White House for an afternoon conference men who are expected to testify for the administration

The group includes Secretaries Hull, Morgenthau and Stimson, Undersecretary of the Navy Forrestal, Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, and Rear Admiral R. E. Ingersoll, acting chief of naval operations.

Stephen T. Early, presidential secretary, commenting on this meeting, said "you might call it a select seminar."

Registrar of marriages for the city of Boston, Frank J. Fay, announced today that as a result of March 17 becoming a legal holiday in Suffolk County, the registry would be closed on that date. About 40 couples who were to pick up their licenses then will have to wait until Tuesday, he said.

U. S. Reports Rise In Costs of Food

WASHINGTON, March 12 (INS)—Commissioner Lubin of the bureau of labor statistics today reported that the cost of the family food budget was slightly more in February than in the preceding month and about 2 per cent higher than last November.

Pork prices again went up sharply. Staples, like coffee, sugr and lard, were moderately higher and prices of some fresh vegetables rose because of the winter rainy season. Food costs were 1.3 per cent higher than in February, 1940, mostly because of a 14 per cent increase in meat prices.

FREE DISCUSSION NEED OF WORLD, SAYS CHAFEE

Dr. Zechariah Chafee, Jr., of Harvard Law School, said today that a "free flow of discussion" of world events looking toward a lasting peace was needed to prevent the United States from being obliged to "save the British empire every other decade."

"If we are to prevent recurring calamities," he declared at Boston University's Founders' Day symposium on freedom of the press, "a great many people must be talking and thinking about it."

"Unless we surround our defense program with a steady atmosphere of free and temperate discussion, which shall gradually shape the terms of a lasting peace, victory will be only a little better than defeat."

Declaring President Wilson's aims for a new world order after the World War failed because no well-informed public opinion existed to carry them through, Chafee asserted:

"In 1941 the same problem confronts us, only it is infinitely more difficult. The task of today is to produce airplanes, guns and battleships. The task of tomorrow is to throw out the half-crazed ruler who threatens to destroy the civilization painfully built up since Marathon.

"We cannot afford to turn away from it (a free flow of discussion) in disgust as in 1920 and let Europe plunge eventually into a third and still more frightful disaster in 1960.

"The Atlantic will then be more easily crossed by bombers than the English channel is now. The American arsenal will then be the first enemy objective. So long as we permit Europe to be divided into competing armed groups we shall be obliged to save the British Empire every other decade."

Describing the United States as the last great nation in the world which had a free press, Dr. Alexander Brin, editor and publisher of the ewish Advocate, called religious publications character building agencies.

"They are more essential than ever in a terrified world," Brin told those attending the celebration.

Another speaker, Bailey Aldrich, Boston lawyer, said that although libel laws put a restraint on free speech they exercise a police control which is, on the whole, beneficial.

Former Lieut.-Gov. Gaspar G. Bacon asserted that in time of war:

"A conflict exists between those who see present danger to the public safety from irresponsible and hostile utterances calculated to impede the effective conduct of the war, and those who would preserve at all costs the right to free speech."

Ban on Welfare Books Inspection Assailed

Legislation that would close public welfare records to judicious inspection was assailed today by Thomas M. Joyce, assistant executive director of the Massachusetts Federation of Taxpayers Ass'n, as "striking at the heart of democratic government."

Joyce spoke before the ligislative committee on public welfare in opposition to a bill filed by Walter V. McCarthy for the state public welfare department. The measure was introduced under a requirement of the federal Social Security Board that records of persons receiving special types of assistance to which the federal government contributes—old age assistance, aid to dependent children and aid to the blind—shall be secret.

Britain Now Has 977 Citizens in Internment Camps

LONDON, March 12 (AP)—A total of 977 British citizens are interned in Britain under defense of the realm regulations, it was disclosed today.

During January, 18—including eight "of enemy origin"—were sent to internment camps and 129 released.

Newsmen Here For B. U. Fete

Newspapermen from many parts of the nation themselves became news today as they gathered here to attend Boston University's annual Founders' Day celebration which marks the principles of freedom of the press.

The two-day program started with a panel discussion on legal aspects of "Freedom of the Press in the Defense Emergency." At 2:30 p. m. a religious press panel discussion was slated with a historic play, "Fetch Me a Quill," scheduled tonight at the Charles Hayden Memorial.

Honorary degrees will be awarded tomorrow to eight leading editors with President Marsh delivering the address, "Freedom of Discussion Indispensable to Democracy."

Mrs. Munroe to Speak In Brookline Temple

Mrs. Viola Gordon Munro, wife of the general representative of the Shubert Theaters in Boston, will speak at the meeting of the Jewish Anti-Tuberculosis Ass'n in Temple Ohabei Shalom Community Center, Beacon and Marshal sts., Brookline, at 2 p. m. on March 19, it was announced today.

Mrs. Munro will speak on theatrical matters. Committee reports will be made by Mrs. Nathan Addelson and Mrs. George Cohen. The committee in charge of the event is made up of Mrs. Joseph Daniels, Mrs. Max Ulin, Mrs. David Small, Mrs. Isaac Simons, Mrs. Samuel Milton, Mrs. Samuel Gould, Mrs. Victor Tarlin and Mrs. Joseph Stone.

him any more? A—I don't remember that.

Q—You were in need of assistance? A—I was. I told him I was very heartbroken in Cleveland an dasked him if we couldn't make a go of it.

Q—Was there anything else you went to see him about in 1937? A—I sold him a typewriter.

Q—You were in trouble in 1937? A—Yes.

Q—That was driving under the influence. A—With a lady from Connecticut.

Q—Did you tell him if he got you out, you wouldn't bother him any more? A—No.

TELLS OF ARGUMENTS

Mrs. Patterson, under further questioning, said she managed a hotel in Ashby, N. H., in 1936, but she went back to Cleveland in the fall. In 1937, she said, she worked at a hotel on the Cape and in the winter of 1937-38 she worked in a Boston dress shop.

Although there were arguments, she said, she admitted that she got along with Clem all right until 1938.

Q—What were the arguments over? A—He brought a woman down to the Cape who had been supported by a man for 20 years and I told him I didn't want that kind of woman around me. That was in August, 1931.

Then Graham questioned her about an incident in 1933 when Clem, she said, brought some laundered garments to her apartment and she went out and got into his automobile.

PARKED HER IN GARAGE

Q—Did he drive around the block several times and try to get you out of the car? A—No, He beat me up.

Q—Well, he finally landed with you in the Eliot st. garage, didn't he? A—That's right.

Q—And you wouldn't get out? A—No.

Q—Had you been drinking that night? A—No.

Q—You were perfectly sober? A—It was only 7 o'clock.

Then Atty. Graham asked the question that dissolved her in tears and brought her outburst.

RECALLS VISITS

When she was excused temporarily, counsel called Mrs. Frances C. Post of Centre st., Jamaica Plain, who testified that she had known both Clem and Mrs. Patterson for some years.

The witness said that she and her husband once were guests at a dinner in the Ballard st., Jamaica Plain, home of Clem and again were guests at his Cotuit summer home.

Clem and Mrs. Patterson, said the witness, were "a lovely host and hostess" and they were "very pleasant to one another."

The witness' husband, Edward G. Post, corroborated her testimony

Recalled to the stand, Mrs. Patterson was cross-examined again by Atty. Graham, for Clem.

Q—You came in one night at the Ballard st. house and Helen B., Mr. Clem and Clem's sister were there? A—Yes.

QUIZZED ON CAPE TRIP

Q—You were peeved that night? A—Yes.

Q—When did you see Helen B. down on the Cape? A—I think it was in 1935. I walked in on them.

Q—You came in and started talking about him bringing bums down on the Capt? A—I might have.

Q—His sister was down there then? A—Yes.

Q—Did you have some altercation with Helen B. down on the Cape? A—When I walked in on them they were drinking. They asked me to have a drink.

Q—Did you have an altercation? A—We had conversation.

Q—Did you make some comment about bringing a bum down, and Helen B. said she wasn't any bum, that she had known Mr. Clem and his sister for some years? A—I don't recall.

New Comedy Tickets on Sale

Seat sale for the opening and subsequent performances of "Your Loving Son," Abby Merchant's new comedy, commences tomorrow morning at the Plymouth Theater. The engagement is limited to a single week.

Heading the cast of Miss Merchant's comedy concerning a pair of irresponsible parents and an adolescent youngster who attempts to solve their problems are Jay Fassett, Eddie Nugent, Lily Cahill and Frankie Thomas, 19-year-old stage, screen and radio star.

New Quarters Begun For Musical Center

Replacing temporary quarters of last year, construction will begin immediately upon two new buildings for the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. Plans call for their completion in time for the school's second session, July 7 to August 17.

These buildings will be a combined theater and concert hall, seating 1100, and a smaller chamber music auditorium, seating 300. Both buildings have been designed by Eliel Saarinen, the Finnish architect who designed Buffalo's recently completed Kleinhans Music Hall.

The Martins, Sen. Murphy at Keith-Boston

The harmonizing Martins and Senator Murphy, political humorist and monologist, head the new stage show, starting tomorrow at the RKO Boston. On the same program will be the two first-run film attractions, "Flying Wild," with the East Side Kids, and "Li'l Abner," with an all-star cast.

The Martins are the radio harmonists heard on the Fred Allen program. They are famed for their harmony and novel arrangements and render both swing and sweet tunes with equal ease.

The Senator, who holds office for life, discusses current affairs in a satirical vein. Also on the stage bill are the Three Freshmen, who do hand-balancing and tumbling feats. The Stanley Dancers, six beauties, and Wynn and Kelly, roller-skating experts, complete the bill.

"Flying Wild" revolves about the attempts of a band of saboteurs to cripple airplane production. Leo Gorcey, Bobby Jordan, David Gorcey and Bobby Stone head the cast. "Li'l Abner," RKO Radio's film version of the comic strip features Granville Owen, Martha O'Driscoll and Edgar Kennedy.

"HOLLYWOOD TODAY," by Louella O. Parsons, noted Filmland authority, appears regularly in the Boston Evening American.

'Here Is Ireland' Begins 10th Week at Fine Arts

The Fine Arts Theater patrons continue to flock to see "Here Is Ireland," the delightful travelogue of Eire which is being held over a tenth week.

In keeping with the Lenten season, Manager George Kraska is adding a new screen feature, starting today. It is "Catholicism Through the Centuries," a history of the Catholic church from the dawn of Christianity down to the present day.

Written by the Rev. Francis X Talbot, S. J., and produced under the supervision of Rita C. McGoldrick, LL.D., this film offers an impressive panorama of the personalities and instoric events which have played important parts in the drama of humanity and Christianity.

"Catholicism Through the Centuries" presents the story of the rise and spread of Christianity from the coming of Christ to the present with its current problems. The picture shows the forces of nature in upheaval, flood, hurricane, fire, leprosy, war. And, behind all of this, is revealed the self-sacrifice of missionaries carrying the word of God to the very frontiers of civilization.

'BACK STREET' AT KEITH-MEMORIAL; SEEN ANOTHER BOX OFFICE TRIUMPH

Fannie Hurst's Story in Revival

By PEGGY DOYLE

Fanny Hurst's stark portrait of a lost lady, circa 1890, which shocked the circulating library subscribers and rang up big grosses in movie-houses throughout the country in the unharried '30's, is back in circulation . . . and likely to duplicate its boxoffice triumphs.

Revived by Universal, "Back Street" is currently showing on Keith-Memorial screen with Charles Boyer and Margaret Sullavan succeeding John Boles and Irene Dunne in the roles of the ever-faithful unmarried lovers.

In Damon Runyon's lexicon, it's a "weeper," or the type of picture which demands your bringing some spare hankies because of the job it does on the tear-ducts. With that warning oft our typewriter, we feel free to suggest that it also might be considered in the light of a modern morality play.

Seriously, the excellent writing script by Bruce Manning and Felix Jackson, never permits you to forget that the for-better-or-worse relationship has it over the unblessed one endlessly.

A HONEYPOT GIRL

Miss Hurst's Ray Smith was a honeypot of a girl, as irresistible to the travelling salesmen who sold her bolts of sprigged dimity and yards of torchon lace for her father's dry goods counters as the flower is to the bee.

Miss Sullavan, of the slightly husky voice and intangible charm, recreates her as inescapably as Producer-Director Manning's production has recaptured the bygone Cincinnati of horse-cars, leg-o'-mutton sleeves and gates-ajar collars.

Her tender, lovable, too-generous Ray Smith is the original white-collar girl, and as warm and believeable a characterization as she has ever given.

Ray, always an enigma to the small-time city slickers because she could resist them, is no match for Charles Boyer's brown-eyed, suave, disturbing Walter Saxel, who was to become an internationally famous banker.

MISSED WEDDING DATE

Not until five years later was Ray to know that a meeting she missed was to have been their wedding-date. A quarter of a century later, bereft, alone, unprovided for, she retraces the years during which she travelled the back streets of Walter Saxel's life and wonders what might have been had they kept that rendezvous.

Boyer, as the self-centered, demanding yet withal charming Saxel, gives a very human portrayal, nicely contrasted to Miss Sullavan's Ray.

In lesser roles, Richard Carlson, Frank McHugh and Frank Jenks give full-bodied characterizations.

Bob Crosby, whose voice is almost a twin for brother Bing's, is the swing-happy hero of "Let's Make Music," the co-feature with Jean Rogers and Elizabeth Risdon.

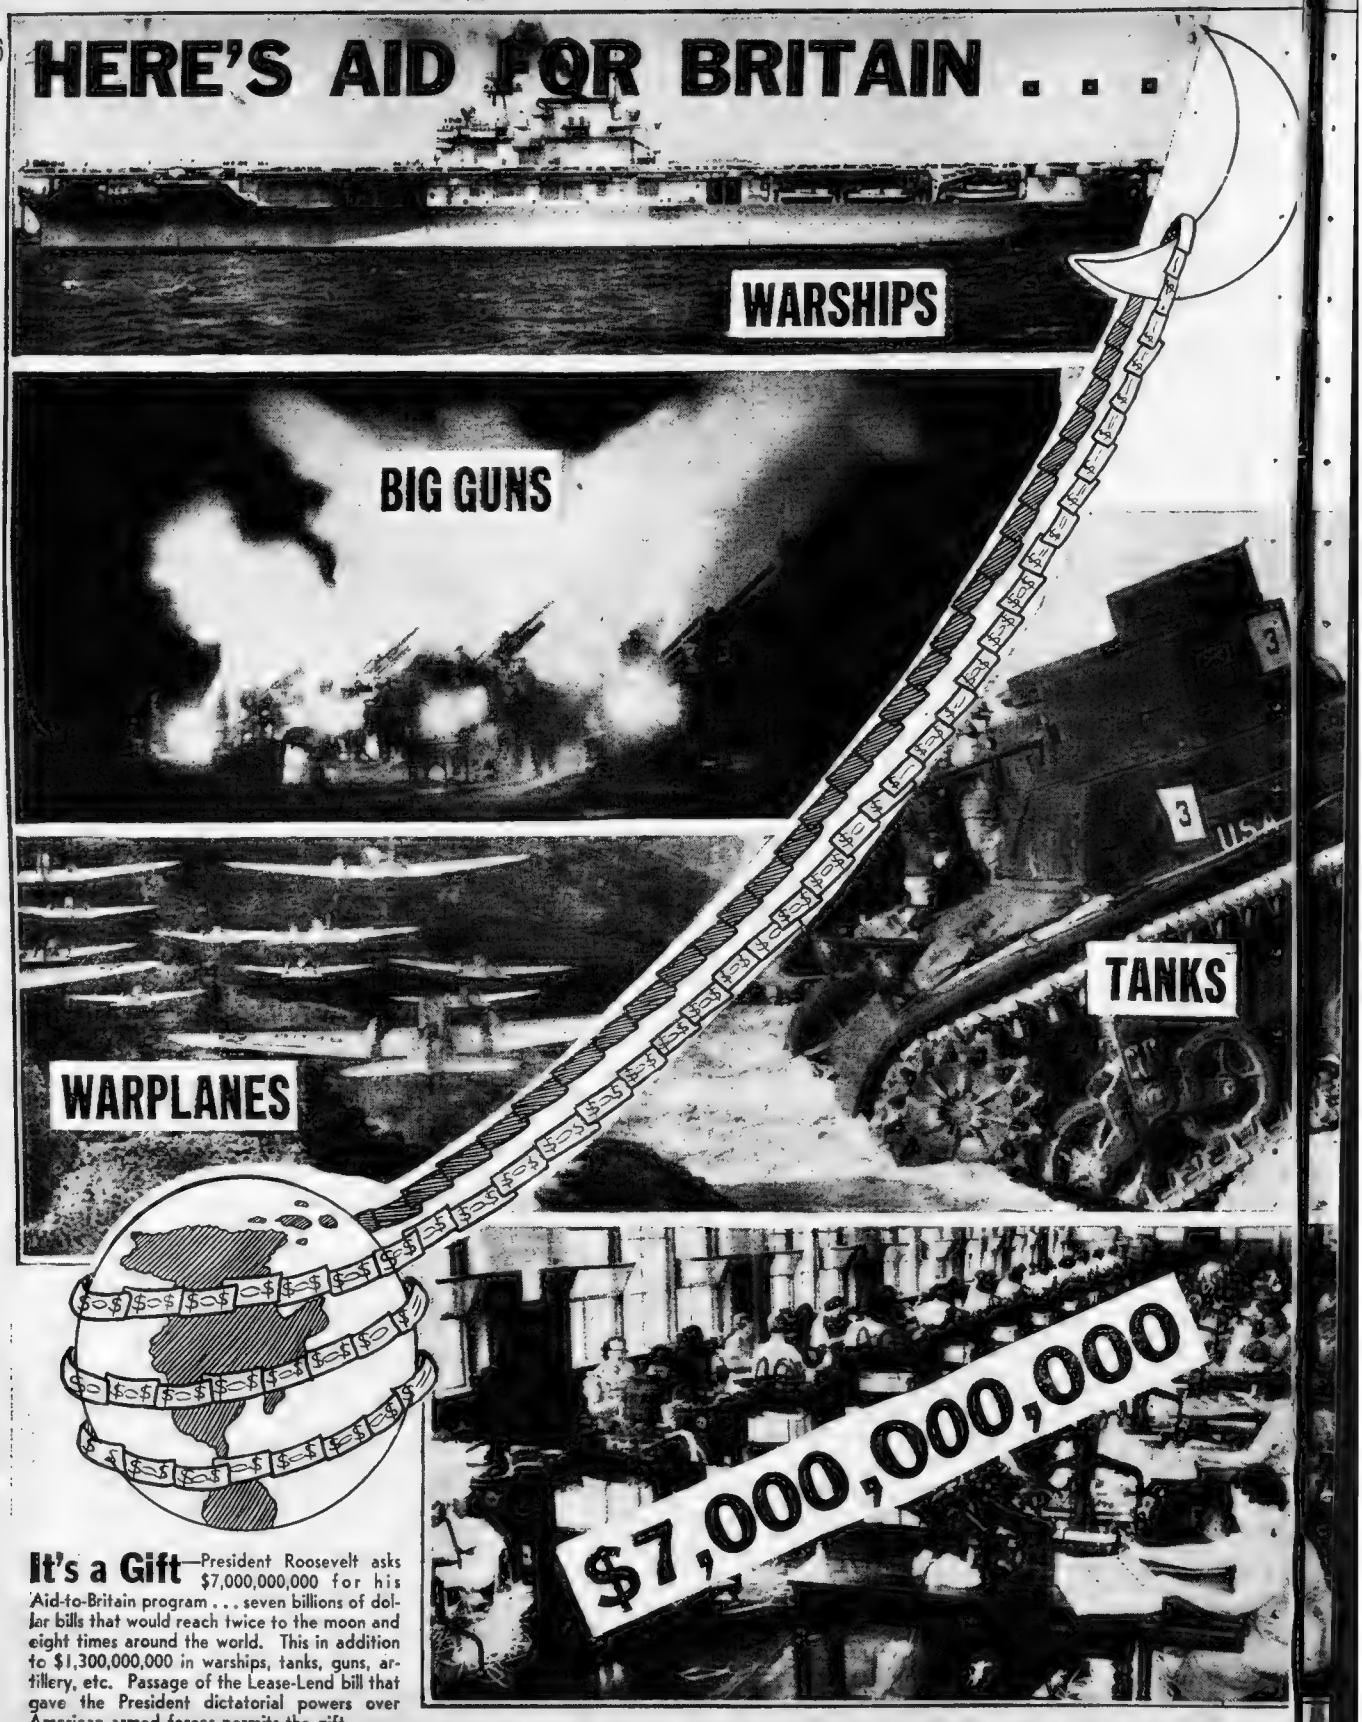
HERE'S AID FOR BRITAIN . . .



It's a Gift—President Roosevelt asks $7,000,000,000 for his Aid-to-Britain program . . . seven billions of dollar bills that would reach twice to the moon and eight times around the world. This in addition to $1,300,000,000 in warships, tanks, guns, artillery, etc. Passage of the Lease-Lend bill that gave the President dictatorial powers over American armed forces permits the gift.

BOSTON'S annual Spring Flower Show opens Monday, March 17, in Mechanics Building.

We can imagine no more important or worth while event in this year of strife, warfare and international hopelessness.

Nor anything more appropriate to the season of re-birth, of returning warmth, of reviving faith in the future.

Guns, battleships and bombing planes, which figure conspicuously in the news abroad and at home, are instruments of destruction.

If they exist in sufficiently large numbers and if they are effectively employed, these weapons can protect some lives by ending other lives.

But no matter how they are used, they are tools of death, symbols of the worst in man, proof of his failure completely to emerge from barbarism and savagery.

The story of flowers is different and happier.

Whether it be the lovely orchid from the Tropics or the humble bloom in the backyard garden, a flower is an emblem of hope and an assurance that good deeds will be rewarded.

We plant a tiny seed, carefully tend the green shoot it sends through the ground towards the sun, and in the course of a few weeks or months we are repaid with bright and fragrant blossoms.

Then we feel better and are better, for we have joined hands with the Creator in producing beauty and in giving pleasure to other persons.

We could write for hours about the joy and inspiration that await those who spend an afternoon or evening at the Flower Show, away from the sadness and disillusionment of war and hatred.

But our words would never do justice to the floral paradise which the Massachusetts Horticultural Society is creating.

Really to appreciate the Flower Show, New England men, women and children should SEE it.

HENRY FORD, the great automobile manufacturer, expresses what might be called the practical side of the Flower Show.

Mr. Ford envisions a day "only several years away," when a farmer will grow most of the materials going into his motor car and, perhaps, provide the fuel from plants as well.

"We'll have an experimental body ready at our plant in a month or so made chiefly of plastics from cellulose fibers which are easily grown," he tells us.

"The plastic body will be several hundred pounds lighter and will be a better body for several reasons.

"Many new materials that can be made from fast-growing plants will aid in conserving minerals in years to come, and a farm boy ought to be able to fill his pockets full of seed and make himself a good living from them."

It is very probable that we are standing on the threshold of a new era.

Already, chemists have demonstrated their ability to convert skimmed milk into material that resembles silk and to do other equally marvelous things.

Only the most imaginative person can foresee what these men of science may eventually accomplish.

Of course, Mr. Ford and other men who are interested in building a bigger and more abundant America of tomorrow are assuming that the current European war will not spread and envelop the entire world.

Were such chaos and universal bankruptcy to come, there could be neither growth nor prosperity, and it is not unreasonable to suppose that civilization itself might collapse.

THE LEASE-LEND BILL, now the law of the land, has the effect of embarking the United States on a fateful course—very possibly on the road to war.

However, it is still remotely possible to keep the United States out of the conflict.

If the American people do not want war, they are still free to say so, and are still free to explore the last methods of remaining at peace.

President Roosevelt has assumed an admittedly grave and difficult task and responsibility.

It is beside the point, today, since an irrevocable decision has been made, to say that many of his countrymen and perhaps a majority of them thought it was unwise to burden him with that task and responsibility.

He sought the burden, and it was put upon him.

Now he has an opportunity to prove that his way was better, and that the trust thus placed in him is not misplaced, and that the power reposed in him will not be the fearful instrument of his own disillusionment and his country's destruction.

But the whole responsibility should not be placed upon the President.

Instead, the people whose hope for keeping out of war is not entirely gone should think and speak vigorously and vigilantly for the preservation of our PEACEFUL way of life.

JAMES STEWART WITH JEAN ARTHUR
Readers Praise His Decision to Join Army

THERE is additional proof in today's dispatches that little women have the most children. Mrs. Joseph Harris of Muncie, Ind., mother of triplet sons is four feet 10 inches in height and weighs 102 pounds. I wonder what Mr. Harris said when the nurse came out and cried: "It's three boys!" If it were not against our policy to use puns I would say the happy pappy exclaimed: "Oh, Boy! Oh, Boy! Oh, Boy!" . . . The Nazi bombers swooped down on a London residential district and left it in ruins. From one wrecked house the rescue squad saw emerging a woman and a little dog. The dog looked around and trotted to a nearby lamp-post which had survived the raids. The dog then looked at the lamp-post and began to vigorously wag his tail. "It's 'is favorite lamp-post," explained the pup's owner . . . Many readers have expressed satisfaction because of the action of Actor James Stewart asking to be permitted to join the Army immediately. And many have expressed a belief the request of a celebrated ballplayer that he be given preference in the draft has a bad effect on the youth of the country . . . A good automobile driver does not have to be continually hearing down on his horn. Have you noticed the difference in the manner which people sound their horns? Some horns seem to say: "Would you mind moving over, please?" While other seem to scream: "Hey, worm, what do you mean by blocking MY way!" Yes, sir, you can read character by the sound of auto horns.

COFFEE AND ROLLS is a good combination, so is coffee and toast, but if I had my way I would have coffee and cinnamon buns for breakfast every morning . . . Trailer vacations are fine. Some wives, however, object to this type of trip saying: "When I go on a vacation I want a rest. I don't want to cook and wash dishes." The solution, ladies, is to teach your husbands to cook . . . "I have been happily married for 15 years," writes a Chicagoan. "At the first sign of unreasonable rebellion from my wife I gave her a good spanking. And have had no trouble since" . . . An eminent educator says the "normal" American family should be four children instead of two. He's probably right . . . That Julian Eltinge was the greatest of female impersonators there is no doubt. But Bert Savoy of Savoy and Brennan was good, too. And then there were the Russell brothers . . . When a filly named "Bill's Sister" won recently the bookies took a terrific beating from feminine hunch players who had brothers named Bill. But not nearly as bad a beating as when a horse named "John's Birthday" won. On this animal which paid off in box-car figures, every woman in the country with a husband or sweetheart named John had a bet. Or so it seemed to the suffering bookies.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

-:- MY DAY

GOLDEN BEACH, Fla., Tuesday —Three of us went to a movie. I think it was called "Adam Had Four Sons." We arrived toward the end of one showing, so we entered in the dark and came out before we reached the end of the picture. It was like reading the end of a book before the beginning.

I was interested in a short presentation of some of the boys in the Army and Navy and the entertainment provided for them. It didn't seem to me particularly inspiring, but perhaps I am expecting too much.

THERE is a column by Mr. Pegler in the morning paper down here, which I think is particularly fine. He points out that the search for an individual or a group of people, on whom to pin possible war guilt, is really futile. Adolf Hitler has told us that he planned for this war and that he has thought out each move with care before making it.

Mr. Pegler tells us that even if we are drawn into the war, it will not be our doing, but the prearranged plan of Mr. Hitler. He expresses it, of course, much better than I can, but the thought seemed to me to be one that it is wise to bring home to all of us, because what happens during the next years does not lie entirely in our own hands.

Our statesmen, our Congress and our people may strive in the sanest and most temperate way, to met each situation as it arises. But we are dealing with people who lay their plans far ahead and we will have to try to be as far-sighted as they are.

FOR THE time being, I think that far-sightedness lies in stepping up our production, in aiding those who believe in the things in which we believe and, at the same time, in preparing ourselves in every possible way for future defense.

Part of this defense, it seems to me, is a mental defense, and is as important for the women and children as the men. It lies in building within us a kind of courage which is ready to meet whatever comes and which is willing to prepare to do so.

I noticed that there was some talk in Congress the other day about the horrors of regimenting women against their will.

I can't imagine that such a thing would even be suggested.

On the other hand, in view of the numerous organizations which women are forming to help in the defense program and the many letters which they write stating their wish to be of use, I would not be much surprised if the congressmen found that there were a good many women less afraid of regimentation than there were of finding themselves useless and unprepared for any eventuality.

ELLIOTT ROOSEVELT LOSES WEIGHT

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, March 12—W. C. FIELDS: Gene Fowler is on his way to Hollywood to rejoin you. He said he had a terrible time in New York—that he was sick 18 days . . . JIMMY ROOSEVELT: Your brother, Elliott, is in town now. He's working so hard at his Air Corps job that, for the first time since he quit school, he's under 200 pounds . . . GEORGE WASHINGTON HILL: At the Hit Parade broadcast Saturday night, the $500 prize money was guarded by four armed guards. They were there to protect only the $500 cash. Unguarded were the three Stradivarius violins used by members of Mark Warnow's orchestra. One of the violins, owned by Arnold Eidus, is valued at $25,000 . . . DEAN ALFANGE: President Roosevelt, who endorsed you last week in the campaign for Kenneth Simpson's Congressional seat, is a paid-up member of AHEPA, the organizations of Americans of Greek origin . . . NELSON ROCKEFELLER: Doc Francisco will report to you about his trip to South America . . . DAN PARKER: Saturday night, at the Hotel Roosevelt, the District Reporters' Ass'n held its annual frolic. Your poem, "The District Man," was read to the guests—the poem in which you describe how the district reporters get quickly to the scene of action, discovering fires before the firemen do, etc. Jacques Cappella, of the dance team of Cappella and Beatrice, discovered a blaze in the foyer of the ballroom, notified the manager, and the fire was put out. Only then were the scooped district reporters told of the blaze.

LANA TURNER

ED FLYNN: Louis Bromfield's farm in Mansfield, Ohio, has unusual decorations. Each building has a board showing its name corresponding to the name of one of his successful novels, which helped pay for the farm. Bromfield, a New Dealer, has a fireplace over which is painted an American eagle and stars representing the states. "But you haven't 48 stars," Bromfield was told. "I know," replied the novelist. "I don't count the States which went Republican" . . . NBC: The Federal Communications Commission's report on radio monopoly will be released soon. It will precipitate a fight between all the radio chains and the FCC, which will attack the radio contracts, etc. . . . DARRYL ZANUCK: Milton Berle, who left for Hollywood to appear in "Sun Valley," is separated from his mother for the first time in his life. She remained here to prepare for her new grandchild.

J. EDGAR HOOVER: Some planes being flown from the Coast and destined for England are being shot at by rifle marksmen in the Jersey hills, 15-minutes' flying time from Newark airport . . . ADOLF BERLE: Here's a gesture made by Wakatsuqi, Japan's ambassador without portfolio here. When he arrived two weeks ago he brought a memorial plaque, in honor of the late Frank Hedges, the Tokio correspondent who died there last April. The plaque will be presented to Hedges' old school, the School of Journalism at Columbia, Mo . . . LANA TURNER: Harry Rapf, the producer, had no faith in your screen possibilities until the polls convinced him of his error. "Lana Turner. Hmpf," he had told his associates. "Take off her sweater, and what've you got" . . . AMBASSADOR OUMANSKY: "Theodore Dreiser's speech here lauding the Soviet Union was overlong. His colleagues quickly recognized the mistake. And as soon as they heard him deliver one good line they all arose, applauding—urged the audience also to rise—and thereby stopped his speech.

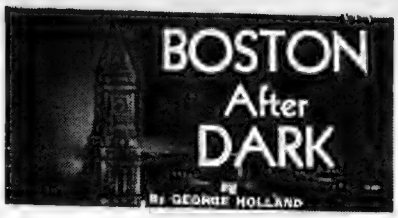
ROBERT SWEENEY: The young American flier now in the Eagle Squadron of the RAF, who quit his job to fight first for Finland, then for France and now for Britain—has been restored to the movie payroll. It will be accumulated for him until his return . . . JEROME ZERBE: The Billingsley-Perona feud, which began when the Stork Club hired El Morocco's publicist, now has a new twist . . . Perona has hired Chic Farmer, who was the Stork's publicist-photographer . . . FRITZ WIEDEMANN: The Hollanders are telling of one of their number, riding in a street car in Vlissingen—one of the Dutch ports from which your Fuehrer hopes to invade England. At the corner, a Nazi officer hopped on—dripping wet, because of the rain. The Hollander looked at the wet uniform, and asked sympathetically: "What? Back already?" . . .



THE PATIENCE of the proprietors of The Versailles has been rewarded finally . . . The reconstructed church in Warren street, with a long history as an entertainment palace since the days when it was the Lido-Venice (circa mid-Prohibition Era) and through the period when it was The Southland, is really clicking at last. (After an approximate loss of some $30,000.)

BOBBY HACKETT'S return to Boston—as "the little man with the horn"—had a great deal to do with the success-story of the Versailles . . . Lois Andrews Jessel's debut as a nightclub artiste had an effect, too . . . Addition of a lengthy bar, from which patrons get an unimpeded view of the floor-show at no additional charge, also helped.

CREDITING THESE VARIANTS with their due meed of value, the fact remains that the prosperous business being enjoyed this week—and last night was not a bright night generally for business along The Rialto—must be attributed largely to a well-nigh perfect floor show

THE TRIUMVIRATE is built around a female who would have been classified as a "strong woman"—in the days of vaudeville . . . That she happens to be a very attractive girl, not a woman, and is so pretty that "strong woman" becomes a glaring anachronism, accounts for much of the act's appeal.

MISS DEL RIO—or Mrs. Del Rio—and her two partners perform some prodigious feats of balancing and torso-tossing . . Some of the tricks were brand new to this observer . . . But the entire show has pace, freshness and variety . . . Lovely Carol Dennison makes an able mistress of ceremonies.

WHEN A STAGE-WAIT occurs in the Versailles' show, as it did opening night when Miss Connie Love was unavoidably tardy in costuming herself for a hilarious and original strip-tease, Miss Dennison is capable of filling it most acceptably with "Time on My Hands," or any of several ditties.

COLONEL AL SOMERBY of the Old Howard, by the way, should take a second look at the gal named Connie Love. If there's a shortage of future Ann Corios or Margie Harts, it would seem to this inexpert observer that this girl—who has a sense of comedy—deserves a chance.

A BALLROOM TEAM named Shane and Armstrong is very good, and Ferrara and Marlowe are a couple of personable kids who can swirl through taps routine with both agility and precision, and some charm to boot . . . A courageous youngster named Ethel Allen reveals a voice that is surprisingly full and liquid.

A FEW YEARS AGO Miss Allen was punching out stories for this newspaper under the by-line Ethelyn Van Porte

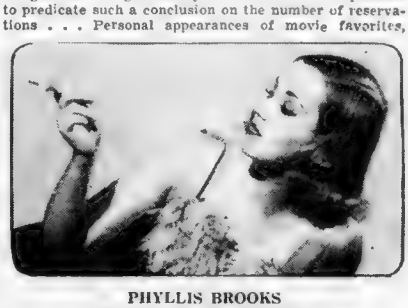
HENRY ARMETTA'S ARRIVAL at the Mayfair tonight will be greeted by a sell-out if it is possible to predicate such a conclusion on the number of reservations . . . Personal appearances of movie favorites,



PHYLLIS BROOKS
She Gets Lead in New Show

when the response is good, serves to refute the theory that movie fans adhere so strictly to a budget that there's no room for the cost of ringside seats . . . The test-case of Henry Armetta will be worth watching.

* * *

PHYLLIS BROOKS will have the lead in "The Night Before Christmas," Courtney's Burr's new production of a manuscript by Laura and S. J. Perelman . . . Mr. Burr promised—the night before Christmas just past, when he was visiting here with "Crazy With the Heat"—that his new show would open in Boston . . . As April 10 has been announced as the out-of-town premiere date, the summing-up from the Burr promise and this announcement is obvious—another new show—and it's about time!

Hollywood Today

ASKED TO PUT OFF LONDON RETURN

By Louella O. Parsons

Quentin Reynolds

HOLLYWOOD, March 12 Charlie Blake, ace Hearst reporter, has just sold Moe Siegel, Republic general manager, an original story, "Washington Correspondent" based on the freedom of the press. Charlie's career is one of the most interesting in the history of the newspaper world. He is the reporter who wrote the first account of the Dionne quins and he is credited with having saved their lives by rushing an incubator to Callender.

A telegram has gone to Quentin Reynolds in New York in an effort to see if he can delay his return to England to play one of the top roles. Just had a wire from Quent, Sally Eilers and a crowd of other friends who are in New York, so it is possible that he may come back. If not, it is likely the picture will be held up pending his return. William Gargan is being sought for the other stellar role.

TALLULAH BANKHEAD

THE COVETED ROLE of the heroine in "My Sister Eileen," the Jerome Chodorov-Joseph Fields stage hit, goes to Jean Arthur and she can be a happy girl for it's one play for which every movie company has put in a bid. Columbia bought it and paid the pleasant little price of $225,000—and that ain't hay if you'll pardon my slang.

Max Gordon, the producer of the stage play, who has a big movie bee in his bonnet, will receive $75,000 for coming to Hollywood as the producer. I shouldn't say that's money spent idly either, for Gordon knows his theater and by the same token will probably give us a motion picture worthwhile

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Ad Randall fell down a flight of stairs and is now in the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital with a broken leg; Robert Riskin and his old heart, Frances Robinson, were an interesting duet at the Mocambo. Frances says it isn't true she's marrying Don Collins; Robert Cummings is building his mother, the Reverend Ruth Cummings, a home in the Valley only a block from his own ranch

Baby Sandy will be a sister any day now. Her mother, Mrs. Ray Henville, is expecting another starlet—she hopes; Barbara Stanwyck will wear a gorgeous ruby bracelet and ring at the "Meet John Doe" premiere tonight. Yes, it was given her by Robert Taylor.

The Gary Coopers are taking the William Goetzes and the Henry Hathaways to the big event; Helen Parrish, who is 18 tomorrow, will go to the premiere with Charles Lang; Kay Francis and Hugh Fenwick, an aircraft executive, at the Scheherazade.

Rex Bell, in town to sell some cattle, is hurrying right back to Nevada because of Clara Bow's illness; Ann Sheridan at Ciro's with George Brent looks mighty well. Hadn't seen her in ages

John Emery, estranged husband of Tallulah Bankhead, arrives in Hollywood Saturday and I hear tell it is a movie offer that's bringing him here; Priscilla Lane's romance with Don Barry of Victorville is still very much alive.

"MEET THE PEOPLE," the Hollywood Theater Alliance stage musical that brought William Orr and Virginia O'Brien to the attention of the movie moguls, is to be filmed. Sam Katz, of M-G-M, who is making the deal, will close for the rights with the Hollywood Theater Alliance for $27,000 and Arthur Freed, M-G-M's musical wizard, is elected to produce it.

Before "Meet the People," however, can be brought to the screen it will be necessary to get the approval of the Dramatists Guild in New York. I hope Bill Orr will be borrowed from Warners for his imitations in "Meet the People" were outstanding. Virginia is right on their lot and this may be the chance she has been waiting for.

BETTY FIELD is little—but oh my! She has her own ideas and Heaven and earth won't get her back to the Hollywood Paramount studio until she is ready to return. She has a clause in her contract which gives her six months a year on the stage in New York and six months in the movies.

Although she has been asked to return to Hollywood to make a picture, she has notified the Para officials she intends to stay in New York until she lines up another stage play—and there's nothing in the world they can do about it.

I WOULD of thought Ben Laguna is crazy when he calls four of us into his office that night and says, "Girls, I want you to breeze in here tomorrow night packed up for a week-end party." Only Ben Laguna is about the slickest article on Seventh st., where he runs the Gold Coast dance hall, and don't go in for insanity even in small doses.

Dreams Can Come True

By Sanford Jarrell

It is Dot Summer who says with a snicker, "Why, Ben!" And then he says, "Listen to me, Dot. This all sounds screwy, but it ain't screwy at all. There's 25 bucks in it for you, and it's all yours. I don't want no cut.

"You're going out to a swell country place and have yourselves a time for a couple of days. There ain't nothing phony about it. I know the guy that's tossing the party and he's on the level. You'll all be as safe there as at a Sunday school picnic, maybe a whole lot safer—whether you like it or not."

Ben Laguna is one straight shooter or I wouldn't be hoofing for him at a nickel a dance. So I figure we'll pick up $25 apiece and at the same time give our dogs a rest. You don't know what it is like Saturdays and Sundays in a taxi dance hall. It's simply awful on your feet.

I never been on a house party, but I do go to the movies. I do the best with what I got, and borrow some duds from a couple of other girls who have rooms where I do at a four-dollar-a-week hotel on Figueroa. I show up at the Gold Coast with a bag belonging to the night clerk, and in it are a couple of dresses, pajamas, a change of underclothing, some slacks and the like, and my toothbrush, comb and brush and the makin's for that peaches and cream complexion that goes so well with my curly blonde hair.

I find Dot, Mazie and Marie already clubbed up in Ben's office and there is an Oriental chap in chauffeur's uniform thumbing through a picture weekly. I forgot to say it is 9 o'clock and a Friday night.

We all pile into a limousine about a half block long and painted a rich maroon and we sink back in the cushions as the chauffeur tools the crap into Wilshire.

It is a bright moonlight night as we drive along the main drag of the San Fernando Valley and the ranches of big movie stars until our slant-eyed pilot turns into a broad driveway lined on both sides with high palms and we come to a stop in front of a house about twice as big as Buckingham Palace. He opens the door for us.

MR. SMITH!

Ruggles of Red Gap meets us at the door and a couple of flunkeys grab our cardboard suitcases and the butler then says, "Ladies, please come this way, Mr. Smith is waiting for you." And he leads us a mile and a quarter down the corridor into a room paneled in what I learn later is cypress that the worms have been eating on. Standing in this room is Mr. Smith in a tuxedo and white pants with a sharp crease in them. He is six feet tall and handsome and I'd say he's about 40. He's smiling pleasantly.

"I want to thank you young ladies for coming here," he says. "I'm Mr. Smith." He stretches out his hand, and I grab it, being the nearest to him. "I'm Sally de Vol," I say. "Pleased to meet you, Mr. Smith." We shake hands, all of us, and then he tells the butler to bring in some cocktails.

We talk about how nice the weather is, and wasn't it hot last October? And Mr. Smith says yes, it was too hot for comfort. Then the butler comes in with a tray, and we drink something pinkish that has an edge to it, I'll say, for I feel it all the way down.

"Just consider this your home," Mr. Smith says, "and please don't ask questions about why I brought you here for the week-end." And he says Mr. Laguna understands, and if we want to think he's Santa Claus come to life it's okay by him, and if we need anything just pick up the telephone in our rooms and ask for it. He says Celeste will show us our rooms, and Celeste turns out to be an exquisite little number in a neat black and white uniform and a cute French accent.

LIKE A QUEEN

The next morning I have breakfast in bed for the first time in my life. Celeste brings me coffee and asks what else I want, and I tell her to shoot the works. The works, it develops, is nothing less than grapefruit ringed around by ice in a silver bowl, an omelette with little pig sausages on the side, and some hashed-brown spuds, hot biscuits and honey and a couple of fluffy pancakes with maple syrup.

For a gal who weighs only 103 pounds in the altogether, I do right well by this.

We drift downstairs and find Mr. Smith in the library and pretty soon we get into our bathing suits and go for a swim in a green-tiled pool that must of cost a million bucks, more or less. Dot has been bragging all the time about her fancy diving but she lands flat on her stomach first time she tries it.

Lunch is a fancy set-up of salads and cold meats, and then a nice looking young man named Mr. Alford shows up and takes Marie out to the golf links.

Mr. Smith suggests a set of tennis after we've rested and up in my room what's waiting for me but that darling Celeste with a short crisp white skirt that I tie on over a white play suit, yellow sox and a yellow snood that I wear over my head. I always play a pretty hard and fast game and I'll say I give Mr. Smith plenty of exercise, but I see he isn't trying to pin my ears back and lets me walk away with a couple of games a set.

Mr. Alford and Marie come back and he says she is one grand golfer, like she always claimed, but there is a twinkle in his eyes as he tells that to Mr. Smith and Marie looks kind of sheepish. Celeste has laid out my evening duds—when I say mine, I mean the clothes I find on the bed when I go up to change.

I have a pearl tiara to be set on the blonde pompadour, pearl bracelets on each wrist, and blue satin slippers in which the toes aren't cut out. I look at myself in the mirror and I say, "Sally, you're just too pretty for words."

Mr. Smith and Mr. Alford are downstairs as we go down, the other girls dolled up beautifully, and there are two other men there. Mr. Hayward and Mr. Grant. I draw Mr. Hayward for a partner and I find he's from Stanford as we drive to Victor Hugo's for dinner and a large evening at most of the swell joints in Hollywood.

Mr. Smith knows a lot of people, but they all call him "Smith," which I don't think is respectful. I am thrilled to pieces at Ciro's while I'm dancing with him and he says, "Hello, Dottie," and it isn't our Dot at all but Dorothy Lamour.

We get in about four and I sleep till noon and have breakfast in bed again. Celeste suggests we get into our street duds as the party is over and I sigh as she packs up. Then we all say goodbye to Mr. Smith out in front, and he says if we don't mind accepting gifts from strange men, he'll send all those new duds we've been wearing down to the dance hall as presents. And then instead of twenty-five dollars he hands each of us two crisp fifty-dollar bills and thanks us for giving him a happy week-end.

Ben Laguna is like a clam when we ask him who Mr. Smith is and then three or four months later he hands us each a pair of tickets for the premiere of "Dreams Can Come True" at the Carthay Circle. He says we can have the night off and tell our boy friends to rent a tux or top hat and tails as these are real swell seats as a remembrance from Mr. Smith.

"I GET IT NOW"

It is great stuff to rub shoulders with the movie stars and to pick 'em out on that magic carpet leading to the theater and in the lobby and audience and I read in the gossip column the next morning that everybody is there except Bette Davis, who can't hardly be dragged to her own premieres.

The picture tells about a taxi dancer who wakes up some morning to find she's rich and has a fine house and a lot of clothes and then I begin to wonder. She plays golf with a society dude and drives the ball through the Country Club window, just as Marie admits she did when playing with Mr. Alford that day.

She cracks her head with a tennis racket, all the same as me, and falls on her stomach diving in the water just like Dot. The payoff comes when I see Mr. Smith on the sidewalk after the show with a lot of people pumping his hand.

I stop a flunkey in the uniform of a rear admiral and I say, "Who is that gentleman over there?" He looks at me as if I was the dumbest female that ever walked down Vine. "That," he says coldly, "is Mr. Smith Bell."

"I get it now," I say.

I say nothing, but I know that we were "Mr. Smith's" guests so he could get the low-down of how taxi dancers act in a spot like that. However, I am burned up because Norma Moore, the star of the picture, plays tennis like a dub, and I am no dub on the court even if I do crack my head with the racquet.

TO THE debutantes and the post-debutantes, the big news for today is the announcement that the tryouts for "Tonight at Nine" . . the Vincent Ventures for 1941 . will be held this year on Monday and Tuesday, March 17 and 18, in the Junior League ballroom at the ungodly hour of 9:30 a. m. . . .

This year, we heard, our photographers are to be allowed in the League building to take pictures of the tryouts So we may expect some interesting photos of the girls in the first stages of rehearsals for the most celebrated amateur-society event in Boston . . .

After that . . . beginning on Wednesday the 19th, to be exact, the rehearsals will continue at the Somerset Hotel . We shall endeavor to get pictures of Boston girls, from time to time, giving the musical comedy stars a little real competition . . .

The announcement of the change in locale for the initial tryouts . . . which were always held at the Somerset . . . comes from Dorothy Rackemann, publicity chairman, who is one of the vice-presidents of the Vincent Club and seems to be a very able young lady . . .

For Medical Aid to China

AT A CHINESE LUNCHEON tomorrow, Mrs. Arthur N. Holcombe will entertain a group of friends at her Cambridge home . . . members of her newly formed volunteer committee of the Massachusetts Chapter of the American Bureau for Medical Aid to China . . .

This party will be the introduction to a number of Chinese luncheons, teas and dinners to be featured through the spring months by women's groups interested in raising funds for medical aid and surgical supplies for the sick and wounded of China . . .

It sounds very very exciting . . . even if there were no worthy cause to be served . . . for only genuine and correct Chinese foods will be served at Mrs. Holcombe's party, and at those to follow . . .

The series has been arranged by Mrs. Charles Sidney Gardner, Mrs. G. Nye Steiger and Mrs. Lawrence M. Mead . . all of whom have intimate knowledge of native customs . . . since they have lived for several years in China . . .

How would you like to taste birds' nest soup, for instance? We have all known that it was a Chinese delicacy, but few of us have tried it . . . but Mrs. Holcombe will have it on the menu with other exotic and delectable dishes . . .

Chicken with bamboo shoots don't frighten us, and we are intrigued with water chestnuts, Marco Polo chow mein . . . which is concocted of lobster, pork spare ribs with sweet-sour sauce . . . spring rools, eggs Fooyung, and of course bowls of rice (as only the Chinese can present it), almond cakes and China tea . . .

Luncheon guests tomorrow will include Mrs. E Merrick Dodd, Jr., Mrs. James Landis, Mrs. Thomas R. Powell, Mrs. George Birkhoff of Cambridge, Mrs. Arthur W. Hartt of Brookline . . .

Also Mrs. Walter H. Woods and Mrs. John Alden Degan of Chestnut Hill, Mrs. Hubert L. Carter of Newtonville, Mrs. A. Chesley York of Medford, Mrs. S. Macon Cowles of Melrose, Mrs. Charles A. Proctor of Swampscott, Mrs. Charles Higginson, Mrs. Katherine Osborne, Isabella Grandin, Louise Fay and Mrs. William A. Baer.

Art Exhibition at Vose Galleries

A HEARTENING NOTE in these terrible times is the fact that our artists can still . . . and we hope will always . . . exhibit their works and find an audience that appreciates beauty . . .

So a simple card, announcing the opening of a Private View . . . "requesting the honor of your presence" . . . by Karl Zerbe . . . becomes more significant because in some countries artists are no longer free souls . . . After St. Patrick's day (March 17th, of course) Zerbe's paintings will be on view at the Robert C. Vose Galleries, at 559 Boylston st., and will be there to be seen through April 5th.

Cake Baking Made Easy!

By MARTHA LEE

ALL COOKS will agree that the essential things in successful cookery are good quality ingredients, reliable recipes and proper equipment. We have often heard it said that a cake is only as good as the ingredients that go into it, and homemakers today admit that to work quickly and well one must have in the kitchen as many utensils designed for modern cookery as possible.

There is no more guesswork either. In grandmother's time the cup without a handle, or with a crack in it became the measuring cup. And various other pieces of equipment, all inaccurate, were used. Thus it was generally a matter of luck when things turned out well.

Today we have standard measuring cups and spoons, bake pans, and oven thermometers. We have available many excellent recipes, tested and approved. The saying "Anybody who can read today can cook" is well founded. The thing to remember is to follow a good recipe to the letter, and be sure of your oven.

Here are some reliable tested recipes:

RICH DEVIL'S FOOD CAKE

2 cups sifted cake flour
1 tsp. baking powder
¾ tsp. baking soda
½ tsp. salt
½ cup shortening
½ cup white sugar
1½ cups brown sugar, firmly packed
4 egg yolks
4 squares chocolate, melted
¾ cup buttermilk or sour milk
2 egg whites, stiffly beaten

Mix and sift flour, baking powder, soda and salt. Cream shortening, add sugars slowly, and cream until fluffy. Add egg yolks, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add melted chocolate and blend thoroughly. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with buttermilk or sour milk, stirring well after each addition. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in 3 greased 8-inch layer cake pans in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) 30 to 40 minutes. Cool and frost with six minute frosting. Makes 3 layers.

SIX MINUTE FROSTING

2 egg whites, unbeaten
1½ cups sugar
5 tbsp. water
2 tsp. light corn syrup
1 tsp. vanilla extract

Mix unbeaten egg whites, sugar, water, and corn syrup in top of double boiler. Beat with rotary beater until sugar is dissolved. Place over boiling water and cook, beating constantly, for 6 minutes, or until frosting will stand in peaks. If an electric beater is used, the time for beating will be about 4 minutes. Remove from heat. Add vanilla extract and beat until thick enough to spread. Makes enough frosting for two 9-inch layers or 2 dozen cup cakes.

You Can Be Beautiful

This Cream Firms the Chin

By ARLINE GOULD

IMAGINE . . . some modern-genie of a sculptor . . . with the power to smooth and mold . . . to mold and smooth what once was your beautiful chin-line . . . back to its youthful firmness . . . no sag, no crepiness.

You needn't just imagine it . . . for there has arrived a new cream whose ingredients are . . . as far as we know, the first time in history . . . plastics, those incredible products of chemistry retorts, on a base . . . and pliable as a cream of the simplest, run of the mill formula!

Plastics of this type . . . it's been discovered . . . have a tremendous drawing and "pulling together" power which may best be depended on for results.

When you apply this strangely pliant, malleable white cream . . . you'll not wait a second before you're definitely aware of its effect on neck and chin tissues . . . you'll feel the miraculous waking-up of the dull skin surface . . . you'll feel the rousing tug of the plastics . . . and you'll know that the oftener you use the treatment, the sooner your goal of a smooth-skinned throat, young as seventeen, will be yours again . . .

Naturally . . . since this is all so new . . . you'd expect the "chin firm" cream to be among the higher-priced luxuries of life . . . but that's not the case. A large jar, which may well contain a whole series of treatments, is but $1.50.

It's so easy to use . . . apply it with the fingertips . . . it literally "rolls" on . . . and leave it on for 20 to 30 minutes . . . remove with cold water. Or better still, whenever you can, leave it on overnight . . . then it will prove itself still more of a wonder . . . in the morning, there'll be no trace of it.

To learn about this new "chin firm" cream of plastics, modern magic, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000 week-days except Saturday, or write, care of Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Guard Your Throatline!

IMMORTAL . . . it seems your beauty can be . . . when modern science steps in to give you a plastic-content cream which you can literally feel smoothing and firming a crepey, sagging throatline . . . so you can boast the columnar loveliness of Kay Francis' throat, set off by her stunningly draped dinner gown. Arline Gould describes this find.

The Used Car Sales Force at Cadillac-Olds. established an all time record for the month of February when they sold and delivered 207 Units for $111,000.00. The total sales of the Used Car Dept. for January and February was 530 Units. Take a bow fellows . . . In spite of the defense program and early commitments, Gordon Benway of the Henley Kimball Co. tells us that he can still deliver practically any model of the new Hudson without any delay . . . It seems that Bill Higgins, appraiser for Mass. Motor Car Co., has been kept so busy in recent weeks that he has just about made up his mind to take a vacation in Florida . . . Joe Murphy and his men are continuing their outstanding job of merchandising the new Nash and the many used cars taken in trade . . . Congratulations to Nish Ataman of Somerville Buick, Inc. His dept. sold and delivered 140 Used Cars in February . . . Chick Newhouse of the Broadway Motor Sales Everett Pontiac Agency hit a new high last week in clean sales. He chalked up 12 no trade sales . . . Mickey Democheil of Ullians Buick Service Dept., Chelsea, was last week promoted to Assistant Parts Clerk . . . Buddy Holz, former Pontiac dealer in Arlington, is now associated with Solford Motors, Inc., Cambridge Nash dealers . . . Steve Molio former North End cafe mgr., has joined the sales force of the Main St. Garage, Inc., Cambridge Olds. dealers.

HOWARD SCHRAMM
Hoover Motors

There'll be no June wedding for Bobby Simmons, Hub Chev. bookkeeper, and Larry "Cuddles" Thomson. Uncle Sam has summoned Larry to Camp Devens—he's an experienced engineer . . . Bill Henley, well-known Chevrolet vendor is back with the Hub Chev. sales force after a few months absence . . . News of activities at Hoover Motors Intown Ford Dealer: Eddie Collins is infanticipating; Lynn Birdsall, a recent comer to the staff, is making great strides; Gordon Neaves, assistant to Howard Schramm, celebrates his first anniversary with the company . . . Max Hessel, well-known automobile man, has offices at Fellsway Motors, Commonwealth ave. Max is on the go so much it's pretty hard to find his office. Good buying, Max . . . Marion Baumgardner, N. E. Trailer Distributor, announces the acquisition of the New Glider Zephyr Trailer Home . . . Phil Glick will soon open a used lot opp. the G. E. plant on Mass. ave. Pat Russo of Harold O'Neil's hard put to it to decide whether or not to retire and make bowling his full-time job. He's that good. Merrill (Mickey) Levine maestro at Merrill Motors is very enthusiastic about his new location. "Being near Fenway Park on Boylston st., is going to mean a lot of sales," says Mickey.

GORDON BENWAY
Henley-Kimball Co.

Bill Smith of Brodigan Motors now knows definitely that he has been put in Class 4 in the draft . . .

The week-end snowstorm didn't deter the sales force at Stilphen Motors. They just dug out and continued selling cars to beat last year's figures. Dave Delaney of Blue Hill Pontiac all puffed up with pride because sales during February showed a 100 per cent gain over the previous year

JIMMIE STEPS ASIDE FOR RUBE

Tabor Will Be Best In 2 Years, Says Foxx

By HERB FINNEGAN

SARASOTA, Fla., March 12—We had been admiring Jimmie Foxx's third base play. The muscular Red Sox first baseman seemed more at home at the far turn to us than he ever did at his own position.

JIM TABOR

He made a nice stop of a hard hit ball over the bag and threw out the runner with a rifle peg. Nobody in baseball boasts a better arm than Foxx. He still could make a great pitcher.

He was getting squarely in front of every ground ball that came down his alley. And he was racing in on the slow ones, picking 'em up bare-handed and tossing the runner out all in the same motion.

His arm alone would seem to give him the call over Tabor at third, and we were thinking that the strongest inner cordon the Sox could field would be composed of Lupien or Flair at first, Doerr at second, Newsome at short and Foxx at third.

We broached the subject to Foxx.

"Don't you under-rate Mr. Rube Tabor," Jimmie advised, "because in two years he's going to be the best third baseman in baseball. His throwing may seem a little off to you, but I'm telling you that for every five he threw wild his first year up ('39) he threw only one last year. And he'll keep getting better.

"Throwing accuracy doesn't come to a fellow overnight. Why, Jimmy Dykes broke in with the A's in 1918 and in 1928 he couldn't throw as well as Tabor is throwing right now.

"But Dykes kept plugging away and in the early '30s he was recognized as the best third sacker in the league. He finally mastered the throw, and when he did he was master of his position.

"Tabe is improving faster than Dykes did. And he's going to be a better third baseman than Dykes ever was.

"He's a winning ball player, that Tabe," Jimmie went on. "He doesn't spare himself a minute any time he's on the field.

"I love his hustle, his determination. He's a scrappy, two-fisted ball player. And he's the type of hitter who's liable to break up the ball game any time he's at bat."

Yes, the Tabe can hit, all right. Pitcher Joe Dobson will attest to that. Joe was pitching for the Indians last year and had the Sox shut out until Tabe hit one for a home run. And just to prove it wasn't an accident he hit another to beat Dobson, 2-0. Joe doesn't even like to talk about it. But he will admit Tabe can hit.

And two years ago as a freshman Tabe hit four home runs in a double-header against the A's at Shibe Park, three of them coming with the bases loaded.

The big Alabaman, who I honestly believe could be a 47-second quarter-miler if he ever tried the distance, has been the Sox regular third sacker for the past two years and is now only 24 years old.

He's got the physique of an ancient Greek discus thrower and the stamina of an ox.

He's married now and the father of an infant daughter. With two more mouths to feed, he's keeping his nose to the grindstone and playing fine baseball

Mr. James Emory Foxx has been around the game a long, long time and he knows it from A to Z. When he says that Tabe will be baseball's outstanding third sacker in two years' time we are willing to string along with him, because he's been an uncanny prophet and because the only fault one ever could find with Tabe was his sporadic heaves that made women and little children rush for safety.

Jimmie Foxx's 4-year-old son, Kenneth, who was injured badly when he fell out of an automobile a few weeks back, has recovered nicely and has returned to school in St. Petersburg. Jimmie's other son, Jimmie, Jr., now 12, is attending a military school in Hollywood, Fla., and loves it . . . Foxx has been bothered by a sprained right wrist, which he received while chasing a foul fly last week.

JOE CRONIN PICKS TIGERS TO WIN A. L. FLAG IN 1941

By LAWTON CARVER

International News Service Sports Editor

SARASOTA, Fla., March 12—"The American League pennant should fly over the New York Yankees or the Cleveland Indians after the coming season, with the Detroit Tigers a fair bet to repeat," Manager Joe Cronin of the Red Sox said today, apparently less optimistic than some of the sideline observers on his chances of pulling his gold-plated powerhouse to the championship.

"We can field and hit," he admitted when presented with this none too startling fact, "but we are taking a gamble on unproved pitching that very well might get much worse before it gets any better."

SEES SLIM SOX CHANCE

He grudgingly nodded a yes that the Sox could get into the race with pitching help, but added:

"Naturally, however, that goes for nearly any club."

As a matter of fact, the Red Sox would have won the American League pennant last season, when the Tigers, Yankees and Indians did their utmost not to win it, but the hurlers finally left the club mired in fourth place, after second place finishes behind the Yankees in 1938 and 1939.

According to his own count, Cronin has a total of 19 legitimate mound candidates in camp, from among whom he will select 10 for the long grind that begins in April and, on past performances, leads only to frustration for Owner Tom Yawkey.

This probably won't be his year, but it could be to prove what everybody has been saying, that you can build up but you can't buy a pennant winner.

UP TO PITCHERS

Having spent a million dollars, including the $285,000 he laid out six years ago to get Cronin for manager and shortstop, Yawkey is committed to going with the talent he has, or can develop, or can get through usual trades. No more wielding of a satchel full of banknotes, win or lose.

And it is up to his pitchers now.

Having traded off some of his throwers since last season, Cronin will be depending on these this year:

Lefty Grove, who is near the end of his tether but still good for a turn a week; Jack Wilson, Herb Hash, Maurice Harris, Earl Johnson, Charlie Wagner, Emerson Dickman, all holdovers; Mike Ryba, the one-man team from the International League, who won 24 for Rochester; Joe Dobson, late of Cleveland; and Leslie Fleming, Oscar Judd and Heber Newsome, of the coast league. Fleming won 17, Judd 22 and Newsome 23 games last season.

INSISTS TEAM A GAMBLE

Some of these may go and some others who show no little promise as to be unmentioned here may

Casey Stengel Moans As Jinx Strikes Bees

By BILL GRIMES

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 12—"I've been in baseball long enough to realize that injuries run in cycles," commented Casey Stengel last night during a press conference, "but I'd appreciate any authentic information regarding how long that jinx intends to hang around me.

"Two years ago, when our roster was below war strength, I lost Eddie Miller and Tony Cuccinello. So you might say I lost my ball club.

"We weren't in the pennant fight at the time that Simmons ran roughshod over Miller and Bartell gave 'Cooch' the business. But we were playing a type of ball that appealed to the New England fans.

"With Miller and Cuccinello out of the lineup, I was left high and dry. I didn't have the replacements. So we were a push-over and hit the old skids.

"Before the Bees went to Bradenton last spring Bob Quinn and I had agreed to go with the kids, regardless of the outcome. We both realized that it was a drastic step to take, but we felt that we were protected to a certain extent by such veterans as Lou Fette, Jim Tobin, Buddy Hassett, Dick Coffman and Tony Cuccinello. That quintet should have been enough of a nucleus to hold us up. But what happened?

TOBIN'S LOSS HURT

"Fette never did get into shape and I was forced to turn him loose; Buddy Hassett came up with the worst season he ever had in the National League; Coffman let us down and Cuccinello slowed up to a walk and I sold him to the Giants; Tobin, who was the No. 1 pitcher coming out of Florida and who was in my book to pitch the opening game twisted his knee in Washington two days before the start of the campaign and was out of action until August.

"Although I realized that Fette was all washed up and felt that Coffman would help us, I still believed that we'd make a creditable showing until I lost Tobin. Then and not until then, I realized that we were in for plenty of grief. And, we were until August, but from then until the finish, we gave those other clubs the old 'juice'.

"After I'd had more than my share of tough luck for two years, I figured that the injury jinx would desert me and work on some other manager. I don't know why he came back this spring, unless old genial Duffy

Bruins Need Tie to Win N. H. L. Title

Insisting that nothing can be taken for granted in hockey, Art Ross still refused to concede the National Hockey League flag to his Bruins this morning after his charges had tipped Toronto, 3 to 2, in one of the greatest ice clashes witnessed on Garden ice this year.

But the cagey Mr. Ross stands alone in his opinion for all Les Bruins have to do now is come up with a tie in one of their three remaining games and they add another record to their long string of achievements—the first N. H. L. club to ever win three championships in a row.

And let Mr. Ross be pessimistic—Captain Dit Clapper confidentially passed on the information that the Bruins will settle all doubt when they clash with the lowly Americans in New York tomorrow night.

LEAFS SHOOT WORKS

There is a reason for Clapper's confidence for if the Bruins could check Toronto last night at Garden, they figure to not only clinch the title but to go on and win the first round of the Stanley Cup series from the Leafs in the opinion of the squad.

Those Leafs threw everything in the books at the Bruins in a game that will keep the 16,088 who turned out, talking for some time to come.

Trailing three goals in the final period, those Leafs refused to quit. They scored twice and came very close to deadlocking the occasion on three or four other opportunities.

Sandwiched in and around these five goals were vicious blocking, a fist fight between Bingo Kampman and Terry Reardon, and dozens of other thrills.

The Bruins raced out front to a three goal advantage in the opening period. The Krauts started matters rolling with Porky Dumart slapping his own rebound at 10.05.

Shortly after Bill Cowley took Eddie Wiseman's pass into attacking territory, passed forward to Roy Conacher who faked to make Broda commit himself and then fired a blazing shot into the corner.

Then seconds before the end of the period, Crawford got hold of Bill Cowley's rebound and took a full mashie shot that deflected off Eddie Wiseman's stick into the strings.

With this advantage it looked like a romp for the B's. The second period went scoreless and then the Bruins came up with a new style of play that almost proved disastrous.

Figuring they had the game won, the Rossmen abandoned their streamline hockey and sat back to play conservatively in order to help Frankie Brimsek pick up his seventh shutout in his quest for the Vezina Trophy. The Leafs put on a five man attack and finally collected. Bucko McDonald passed to Pete Langelle who tried to put the plug away but the disc bounced off Brimsek's pads out to Don who put it away.

Wiseman was sent off for slashing and the Bruins tried to forecheck a man short. Just as Wiseman's time was up, Terry Reardon put a nice block on Kampman and Bingo went after Reardon. He slapped a bearhug on the Bruins youngster and when Terry freed himself he threw a right hand punch at the Leafs' husky defenseman. At it they went but the only damage was a scratch over Terry's eye which was made by Linesman Ag Smith in separating the pair.

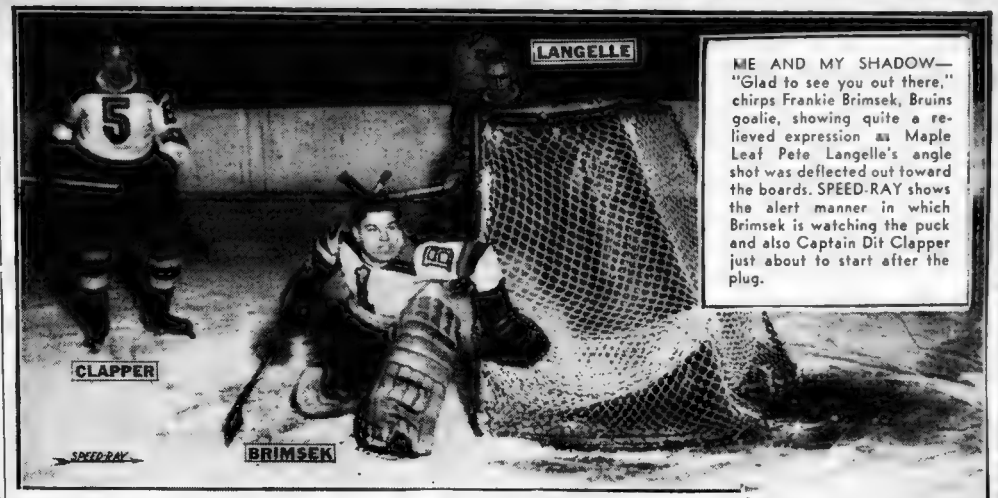
BRUINS HANG ON

Off went Reardon and Kampman for five minutes. Wiseman returned but the Bruins soon had four against five when Des Smith was exiled for hooking Don Metz.

Action started in Toronto territory and Milt Schmidt, in trying to clear, fell. The Leafs took the puck and in came Schriner, Metz and Taylor.

"Sweeney" Schriner finally maneuvered into position and clicked the plug at Brimsek who cleared, but before Frankie could straighten away Schriner nudged his rebound home.

The Bruins soon returned to full strength and forgot defensive hockey. Back they went to their streamlined game and that one goal advantage held for the remaining nine and one-half minutes.



ME AND MY SHADOW—"Glad to see you out there," chirps Frankie Brimsek, Bruins goalie, showing quite a relieved expression as Maple Leaf Pete Langelle's angle shot was deflected out toward the boards. SPEED-RAY shows the alert manner in which Brimsek is watching the puck and also Captain Dit Clapper just about to start after the plug.

Clapper Retains Dufresne Trophy

Captain Dit Clapper who is in line for the Hart Trophy emblematic of the National Hockey League's most valuable player, is the successful defender of the Elizabeth Dufresne Trophy which is awarded annually to the Bruins' outstanding player on home ice in the opinion of the hockey writers.

It makes the second year in a row that the Bruins' captain has received this honor. In the past it has been won by Eddie Shore three times and by Tiny Thompson twice.

BRIMSEK N. L. RUNNERUP FOR '41 VEZINA TROPHY

Mishaps and accidents requiring medical attention which are generally reserved for the hockey players took their toll among the spectators at the Boston Garden last night . . . Lemuel Pickard of 110 Paradise rd., Swampscott, collapsed during the hectic first period and died on his way to the hospital.

Shortly after, John Colby of Beacon st., Brookline, suffered a slight shock but he soon recovered and went to his home . . . then, just before the end of the game, a flying puck hit a young lady who was seated in the front row and she was cut so badly over the right eye that four stitches had to be taken.

The hockey players, though, didn't escape uninjured . . . Stoney Jackson was tapped far from gently over the head and was so badly dazed that he couldn't play the last period—there's quite a swelling . . . Eddie Wiseman was struck in a mixup and claret flowed freely from his proboscis but no major penalty was called for Mickey Ion insisted that Eddie was hit by a puck.

Johnny Mowers, freshman goalie from Detroit stepped into the lead for the Vezina Trophy by being idle last night . . . he now has 94 against . . . Brimsek is next with 96 and then comes Turk Broda with 97 . . . four interested spectators from Camp Edwards were Hugh Mulcahy, Phillies pitcher; Bobby Knowles, well known golfer; Bill Cochrane, youngest of the famous Cochrane golfing family and Sergeant John McKelligan.

Line forms to right for the playoffs . . . the first two games will be played in Boston, March 20 and 22 . . . this 22nd date may be puzzling for it's a Saturday night . . . all playoff games with Toronto originally carded for Sunday at the Garden will be played Saturday night instead . . . the reason for the change is that sports broadcasts are not permitted in Canada on Sundays and by playing Saturday night not only can the Dominion hear Frank Ryan's dulcet tones but a transcription can be cut for a rebroadcast overseas to the Leaf rooters under arms in England.

An unusual sight in the first period came when Turk Broda lost his oversized stick in a melee around his cage and for 30 seconds had to stand guard not having time to retrieve the club . . . fortunately for him there wasn't a shot during that half minute . . . fans remembering the officiating of Mickey Ion in the last Rangers game here when the B's suffered their first loss in 24 games really gave him "the business" when he skated on the ice . . . the mouth of the fans open shifted

Connie Smythe, dapper head of the Leafs made his first visit of the year to Boston and sat behind Toronto's bench . . . oddly enough, despite the hectic arguments and close play, Connie sat back quietly—most unusual!

Bill Cowley picked up two more assists to boost his total in that department to 43 . . . he now has 57 points which not only clinches the N. H. L. title but ties him with Charlie Conacher who holds the record under the present ruling system . . . the all-time mark is held by Cooney Weiland who had 73 points in the 1929-30 season when forward passing was permitted from any point on the ice.

Brimsek made 26 saves against 31 for Broda . . . little wonder Brimsek moved right into the fight for the Vezina trophy . . . Frankie has had only 18 goals scored against him in 13 games while Broda has been vulnerable 35 times in the same number of games.

Pistol Shooters Temperamental Lot

By GAYLE TALBOT

TAMPA, Fla., March 12 (AP)—I would say without making a thorough check that the most temperamental athletes in the world are the 400-odd pistol shooters who are engaging at present in their annual mid-winter championships on the local range.

I was doing nothing more harmful than a little noon hour practice shooting at the furthest point from the clubhouse—and not hitting anything in particular—when all hell broke loose. The contestants came swarming out from their lunch and an excited range officer took me out of there before anything serious happened.

There seems to be a rule that there can be no practicing, or "sighting in," once an event has begun, and when these dudes heard a gun going off they naturally left their soup to see that nobody was stealing a march.

DRIVER TOPS

While the incident was embarrassing it brought its compensation in the form of a talk with Marvin Driver, coach of the Detroit police team, which is to this marvelously perfected competition what the Cincinnati Reds are to baseball at the moment. That is, tops.

Sergeant Driver, a sniper with the A. E. F. back in 1918, is the proud instructor of a team that holds 30 indoor and outdoor world pistol records—the most ever set by a single team. He thinks, pardonably, that his boys are the greatest pistol marksmen who ever lived.

There are five of them in all, but the two who receive the undisguised admiration of all the other pistol shooters as they saunter about the range here are Alfred Hemming, recently advanced to a sergeant on the Detroit uniformed force, and Patrolman Harry Reeves.

They are kingpins. Hemming last year was rated the national champion by the National Rifle Ass'n, with Reeves such a close second on the record that only 15 ten-thousands of a point separated them in the final standing. They might have called it a tie.

Having watched them blaze away, I will testify that either Hemming or Reeves could be counted upon to knock a sparrow off a wire nine times out of ten at 50 yards. The extent of their accuracy, with a pistol, needs to be seen to be believed, and their instructor Sergt. Driver, does not think it ever was approached by such six-gun experts as Wild Bill Hickock or Billy the Kid.

CONDITIONS CHANGED

"Of course," he concedes, "those old-timers were artists at getting a gun into action quick and shooting a man at short range. But there is nothing to indicate they could have equalled the fine shooting being done nowadays. For one thing, both guns and ammunition have improved tremendously, and competition is getting tougher every day.

"We've been tops f r the last two years, but the Treasury Department team is crowding us harder at every meet and we'll be lucky if we beat them this time. They have the advantage over us in that they draw their men from all over the country."

The members of the crack Detroit team, incidentally, are in no wise subsidized by the city, and their captain estimates that each of them spends $500 a year of his own money for ammunition and equipment.

Yet he has figures to show that the improved marksmanship of the Detroit force, influenced by the success and fame of its pistol team, has been instrumental in reducing that city's crime. Or at least its criminals.

"Fifteen years ago in Detroit one policeman was killed to every three criminals in gun battles between us," said Driver. "In the last five years the ratio has been reduced to one policeman to 12 criminals."

DRAFT GETS ROOKIE

Cronin Picks Tigers to Win Flag Race

land on the squad, but the foregoing is an indication of why Cronin insists his team is a gamble. He lacks a well-rounded, experienced firing squad.

Against all that the Sox will present a team which last season finished in a deadlock for the club batting title, was second in runs batted in and fourth—three points out of first—in club fielding.

It should do just as well or better this season with the following lineup:

BANKS ON PYTLAK

For catching Cronin is going to bank on Frank Pytlak, who was in and out of Cleveland's 1940 lineup with a .141 batting average. Cronin also has Johnny Peacock, or Jimmy Foxx if necessary, or even Moe Berg. However, he thinks Pytlak will be all right.

He also thinks Cronin will be all right at short, and plans to play himself there. Although he isn't so spry as he used to be, he still can hit, especially in the pinches, and slug some.

He hit 24 homers last season, which, with 36 by Foxx, 23 by Williams, 22 by Doerr, and others by others, gave many a pitcher many a headache.

But to offset the team's excellence in other departments the Red Sox pitchers were among the least effective in the league, and may not be any better this season.

Mr. Boston

By JACK CONWAY

AMATEUR BOXING will come back into its own once more at the Garden on next Monday night, when the class of the local simon pures clash in the New England championships . . . Gene Driscoll tells me it should be the best amateur boxing show staged in this city since the All-America championships.

The amateurs always give 100 per cent ring effort, which is why they are so popular with the fans . . . With March 17 a legal holiday, it is expected that the title ring bouts will benefit by the large number of out-of-town people who are certain to come to Boston for the various celebrations.

Baseball players have been secretly told not to claim deferment when called for military service . . . The powers in baseball believe that the game will lose some of its popularity if its star players ask for deferment . . . Judge Landis has made it plain that in cases of unmarried players only a club can ask for deferment, and under present plans no such action will be taken.

Baseball leaders are of the opinion that each club will suffer about equal losses by the draft and that it would be short-sighted policy for any team to make special efforts to retain the services of its young stars.

While the salaries of ball players will cease once they join the colors, several clubs have already made arrangements to make loans to players who are carrying real estate and other property . . .

EDDIE MEAD, who managed Henry Armstrong into three world championships, told me at Miami Beach that he believes Joe Louis will successfully defend his world heavyweight title against Billy Conn in June.

"Conn is game and a good boxer," declared Mead, "but I think Louis will beat him with body punches. I do not believe a 175-pounder can stand up in the face of the 'Brown Bomber's' gruelling body smashes."

Mead told me Armstrong is getting $1500 a week with his band.

"After the second Zivic bout," asserted Mead, "it would have been unwise for Armstrong to have continued boxing. He would have risked serious physical injury in each bout, and it was better for him to go on the road with his band."

Mead gave Zivic the first Armstrong bout on condition that if he won Eddie would have a 25 per cent interest in the new champion. It turned out to be a smart business move. It is understood that Mead is willing to sell his interest in Zivic. Mead is rapidly regaining his health . . .

The powerful Irishman is one of the world's most perfect athletes . . . Joe Louis has turned down repeated offers to meet Casey in a "mixed" bout, and I don't blame him . . . I saw Casey down "Tiger" Warrenton, heavyweight boxer, in quick fashion during a private bout at the Garden . . . A boxer hasn't got a chance of winning in a "mixed" contest against a leading wrestler.

Earl Gibson of the executive force of Suffolk Downs is back in town after a vacation in Florida . . . Earl says Racing Secretary Charley McLennan has already forwarded to the Boston office of Suffolk Downs a list of stables that have been granted stalls . . . Sutfolk Downs is expected to have the finest thoroughbreds in the country for its meeting . . . Earl stated that Charles F. Adams, president of the East Boston track, will return to Boston from Florida the latter part of this month.

Sergt. Eddie Mack has made several trips from Arizona to Santa Anita . . . The sergeant's health has improved and he will be back in New England in time to get the latest information on the horses that will be at Narragansett Park for the opening of the New England racing season on April 12 . . . Jim Connors, chairman of the board at the Rhode Island track, is home after having come up with Big Pebble in the Widener Challenge Cup race.

Allan Wilson and Lou Smith, two of the pioneers in New England horse racing, were among those who attended the hockey game at the Garden last night . . . Mrs. Wilson also viewed the ice battle.

The Army camps in time will produce star boxers, according to Jack Dempsey . . . With thousands of well-developed youngsters going in for boxing, Dempsey believes that some championship timber will be developed . . . Gene Tunney, Bob Martin, Bob Roper, Young Kloby and Nate Siegel were developed in the Army during the World War . . . The Navy later gave boxing Jack Sharkey, Ernie Schaaf and Dick Finnegan.

CRIMSON STUDENTS INSIST BROADCASTERS PAY ON LINE

Hundreds of Harvard undergraduates are signing a petition today demanding that Harvard commercialize the broadcasting of its football games in order to wipe out the $40,000 deficit of the H. A. A.

Petitions demanding that Harvard take up commercialized grid broadcasts filled notice boards all over the college this morning and it was unofficially estimated that about two thirds of the students support the plan.

The drop off in gate receipts will mean that many of the Harvard schedules will have to be shortened next year and also some of the Jayvee sports will be abolished as an economy move. The petition stated that the H. A. A. had received a $37,500 offer to broadcast the Crimson grid games which would uphold the tottering H. A. A. It was further pointed out that Yale has let out its broadcasting rights for several years now and that Princeton will follow suit next fall.

Harvard students feel that no curtailment should take place in the sports schedule as it now stands and that the recommendation of the athletic council, an undergraduate committee, to begin the radio broadcasts should be put into effect.

President Conant is staunchly against "associating the name of Harvard with a commercial product as overemphasing football," but the proponents of the new plan state that the Harvard football programs are full of advertising which is the same thing.

It is expected that the demand on the part of the student body may force the president and the Harvard Corp. to rescind its negative vote in the near future to avoid student agitation.

Leahy Hopes To Duplicate Layden Record

SOUTH BEND, Ind., March 12 (AP)—Frank Leahy, another pupil of the immortal Knute Rockne, took charge of football at Notre Dame today.

The 32-year-old coach, who left Boston College to return to his Alma Mater, expected a squad of 200 players, including 16 lettermen, to report for spring practice. Assisting Leahy are John Druze, Ed McKeever and Joe McArdle, all of whom came with him from Boston.

"We will be most happy if we can come close to the wonderful record made by Elmer Layden in the last seven years," Leahy said. "Forty-seven victories and three ties against 13 defeats, and with the hardest kind of schedules, is a record of which any coach well could be proud."

YALE SINKS HARVARD

Yale's swimming team dunked Harvard 56-19 at the Harvard pool last night, taking all but one first place. The Eli freshmen defeated Harvard 45-30 in a preliminary meet.

Penn Five Plays At Harvard Gym

Harvard will be host to the Pennsylvania basketball team this evening at 8:15 in the Harvard gym in the final home game for the Crimson. Wes Fesler's team concludes its season Friday when it faces Yale in the second game of the annual series.

The lineups:

HARVARD	PENN.
Simpson, rf	lf, Levinson
Romanio, lf	rf, Caputo
Rotschild, c	c, Viguers
Buckley, rg	lg, Solellac
Finegan, lg	rg, Schreiber

Crimson Notes—Dick Harlow has called his grid players together for a preliminary meeting, Al McCoy was on hand to meet the players. Word is passing around that Harvard will employ a somewhat different style of football next year . . . The Harvard nine is working out in the Briggs cage and will leave Cambridge in two weeks for its annual s uthern tour.

Brockton Postpones Hoop Semifinals

With Mayor Fred Rowe , reclaiming today as a day of mourning for the victims of the Brockton fire of last Monday morning, the Brockton Y. M. C. A. authorities have postponed tonight's semifinal matches of the 18th annual South Shore Interscholastic basketball tournament until tomorrow.

ARENA FOES SHOOT FOR GO WITH ANGEL

The rough house bout of the year should take place on the mat of the Boston Arena tonight, when Big Ben Morgan, 320-pounder from Texas, and Joe Cox, slightly smaller but just as tough and hailing from Kansas, clash in the main event of Promoter Paul Bowser's tournament. It will be two falls in three distance.

The winner has been promised a chance at The Angel when the holder of the world's title next makes Boston his calling point.

Morgan will have something like 70 pounds in weight on Cox, but the latter flings a wicked punch with either hand. This in fact rather than wrestling holds has propelled him to the top of the mat sport. He is rough and ready at every minute and says he will treat Morgan the same as he has dozens of others who have dared to meet him here.

In the semi-final, Marvin Westenberg of Tacoma, former Shadow and ex-champion of the world, clashes with Tommy O'Toole, the Irish lad from California who has become a sensation here.

INJURY JINX CUTS DOWN MORE BEES

Lewis had been inviting him to some of those parties he stages for you writers. But he's back and going stronger than ever.

"We worked out for almost two weeks with nary an injury. But, in the first exhibtion game that we played against the St. Louis Browns, what happened?

"Bang, and Chet Ross who drove in more runs last season than any player on our roster, despite the fact that he was a rookie up from a Class B league, is out for a month as a result of an injured leg.

"True, instead of simply rupturing the lateral ligaments above his left ankle, Ross could have broken his leg and might have ended his baseball career because of a freak accident.

SPAHN BREAKS NOSE

"Just to convince me that he's back in our midst, the jinx has been working on a few more of the boys since he flattened Ross. We didn't have a sore arm in camp until Ross was hurt. The next day young Art Johnson told George Kelly that his salary whip was as stiff as a board and the following day there's an epidemic of colds among the players.

"And, yesterday, out at Randolph Field, before we played the post team, Warren Spahn, a most promising young pitcher, gets conked on the bugle with a line drive, while he's in a pepper game, and suffers a broken nose.

"If Terry, Frisch, McKechnie, Prothro, Durocher, Southworth or Wilson want to acquire the services of a guy, who to my personal knowledge has been helping their clubs for a couple of seasons, I'll gladly give them John Q. Jinx who has been with the Bees since I took over. I'm all fed up on that guy."

The Bees and the Browns are to play the third game of their series this afternon at Tech Field, Wes Ferrell, George Barnicle and Dick Errickson will do the chucking for the Stengelese.

TRIPLE PLAY

Regardless of the number of years they've been in or stay in baseball, there isn't a member of the Bees who'll ever spend a more enjoyable day than he did yesterday at Randolph Field. The "West Point of the Air" went "all out" while entertaining the Boston club.

The Bees didn't put on an act while shutting out the Randolph Field team, 8 to 0. They were really bearing down from start to finish.

Eddie Carnett and Tom Earley allowed only four hits but the Bees got to Herman Blackwell, a former University of Tulsa star, Adam Cioloski, George Jacobs and the veteran Al Crostwaite, who last year held the Browns to one hit for five innings, for 17 hits.

The feature of the game, which drew a crowd of 3500, the largest ever to turn out at Randolph Field, was the windup of the contest, a triple play. With men on first and second and nobody down, Pinch Hitter Walker lined to "Sunshine" Majeski, who threw to Buddy Gremp, doubling Patavino off second, and then Gremp whipped the ball to Buddy Hassett in time to get Corvell for the third out.

Special Trophy In N. E. Finals

It will be "Evacuation Day" next Monday night, March 17, at Boston Garden for 24 of the 32 "pick" of the crop of New England amateur boxing ranks.

The occasion will be the grand finals of the N. E. boxing championships, sponsored by Gene Driscoll and his New England A. A. U. boxing committee, and will bring into the Garden ring many of the All-America, Golden Glove, Diamond Belt winners and the entire list of 1941 Mass. State champions, as well as many new youngsters who made the semi-finals by qualifying in the recent three tryout shows.

In addition to battling for championships every boxer will be trying to win the "George V. Brown Trophy," a special prize offered by the N. E. boxing committee to be awarded the outstanding performer of the night and so judged by the newspapermen in attendance at ringside.

The winners will be selected to represent New England in the big N. A. A. U. championships, to be held at the Garden on March 31, April 1 and 2.

IIANOTTI FIGHTS DRAW

NEW YORK, March 12 (AP)—Joey Ianotti, 129½, New Haven, Ct., and Curley Nichols, 126¾, Brooklyn, fought an eight-round draw.

Behind the Net

Georges Vezina, probably the outstanding French Canadian contribution to pro hockey, was star goalie for Canadiens for 15 years . . . known as the "Chicoutimi Cucumber" because Chicoutimi, Quebec, was his home town and he was cool and unruffled under heavy fire . . . Vezina played his first game in Les Canadiens' nets in 1910 and his finale in 1925 . . . the characteristic five-man rushes of Canadiens—they were called "The Flying Dervishes"—often left Vezina alone to face three-man attacks but he was a hard man to beat . . . he was respected and admired throughout his 373-game career, and when tuberculosis carried him away at the age of 38, hockey lost a highly skilled performer and a gentleman.

Skiers Happy Again, Snow Covers N. E.

By TAP GOODENOUGH

AT LONG LAST—POWDER SNOW! After a February practically devoid of that elusive white substance, a real storm roared in on the wings of the first week of March, leaving skiers more happy than if they had struck gold.

Conditions throughout New England were almost perfect, as tows and trams teemed with thousands, while white slopes were stippled with sitzmarks and flying figures . . . Mountain trails seemed ablaze as runners left streamers of smoky powder in the wake of their descent . . . Skiing has hit its stride!

Last week-end was made conspicuous not only by the arrival of snow, but by the crowning of ski champions, East and West . . . Serenading the stars with his ski tips, the terrific Torger Tokle again won the Eastern Jumping Tourney at Gilford-Laconia, N. H., setting a new hill record with a tremendous leap of 251 feet on the Balknap area 60-meter jump.

Having already had two legs on the handsome Winnipesaukee Trophy, (as well as on his skis) the 22-year-old Norwegian with the shining face retired the coveted cup.

This skiing eagle displayed flawless form as he flew his winged boards against a driving wind and blinding snow . . . a crowd of 7500 spectators witnessing the truly great champ they had all journeyed to see . . . Much accolade should also be given to Art Devlin, aged 17, representing the Lake Placid Sno-Birds, who placed second to the incomparable Tokle.

Another champion was shot from Cannon Mountain in the shape of that rugged runner, Sel Hannah, who captured the Eastern downhill title there on Saturday from a fast field. In winning this big race, Sel, a former captain of the Dartmouth ski team, beat out Charley McLane, captain of this year's Big Green skiers.

Hannah, formerly noted as a cross-country racer, has proven his versatility this season by starring in downhill and slalom events. And he also was once a jumper.

Ski tracks wrote a stirring story in the snow at far-flung Aspen, Colorado ski resort, where the national championships were contested, with Toni Matt, F. I. S. racer of the Eastern Slopes Ski School in North Conway, emerging victorious and valiant, the new national downhill champ.

It is to be remembered that big Toni went out to Sun Valley for the Nationals last season with an enviable record. He had won every major race in the East. He had never fallen in a downhill dash! But the trail on Baldy Mountain turned out to be his nemesis.

After schussing the dreaded stellhung at sensational speed, Toni lost control and crashed into the woods on the turn. He wasn't seriously injured, but never regained his usual form in later races.

Then the silly rumor started that "Matt had lost his nerve; he fell!" They said, "He can't come back . . ."

But Toni has "come back" in this brilliant triumph, defeating his greatest rival, durable Dick Durrance, last year's winner.

SKI SCRIBBLINGS

If the luxury of local skiing lasts, the Commonwealth Country Club will run the postponed Winter Carnival tonight . . . While the slope is in darkness, Bill Eagleson, ski instructor, will schuss through a burning hoop, a human meteor.

Newton High ski team boys and girls will criss-cross the hill in fiery patterns made by torchlights . . . The clubhouse will be open to all skiers for a dance which starts at 10 p. m. . . . Fellows are urged to bring their girl friends, for Miss Commonwealth Country Club will be chosen from the fair sex on skis . . .

The third and final USEASA test for professional ski instructors this season will be conducted on Monday, March 31 .

Wilson Changes Mind, May Catch 50 Games

AVALON, Cal., March 12 (AP)—Unlike the elephant, Jimmy Wilson of World Series fame has a remarkably short memory.

Less than six months ago the star of Cincinnati's sparkling victory over Detroit announced with appropriate finality that his playing days were over. Now comes word from training headquarters of the Chicago Cubs here that Wilson has changed his mind and figures on catching 50 games this season.

Those who remember Wilson, his creaking joints and aching muscles at the end of the World Series, find this hard to believe.

"Never again," was Wilson's valedictory. "It's too much for me. It's up to the young fellers from now on." Wilson will be 41 next July 23.

Several weeks after the series the Chicago Cubs hired Wilson as manager.

YALE MERMEN WIN

A strong Yale swimming team dunked Harvard mermen, 58 to 29, at the Harvard pool last night.

SCHOOL COACH BOWLS AGAIN IN TOURNEY

Henry Hormel, track coach at Medford High School and one of the finest track and football athletes ever developed in this part of the country, will attempt to catch up with a long over-due champion's recognition when he competes in the American-Record grand candlepin bowling championships which will be held from March 29 to April 12 at the Huntington Club.

Henry has competed three times previously in the American-Record classic and each time he has finished just off the pace in runner-up position, a fact which alone makes him one of New England's most outstanding keglers.

Always a noted dash man, "Henny" broke away with a terrific sprint in bowling. First taking to the sport in 1935, he scored 353 for his three strings total to take second prize in the 1937 American-Record tournament. That same year he won the city of Medford amateur title and was high average at 105 in the Medford Merchant's League.

HOLDS MANY TITLES

In 1938 he was again second in this newspaper's event, this time with 371 pins as against the winner's exceptional 393. That year he won the Arlington Teachers League title with an average of 105.81 and the Medford Merchants League for the second year running.

In 1939 he was champion of both the Medford Merchants' League and in 1940 was second in the American-Record tourney with a pinfall of 365, just one pin behind the winner's 366. A two-spare in the seventh box of the final string lost him the title.

Last year Hormel won the New England Bowling Association amateur championship with a 10-string total of 1120 bowled over Harry Eremian's Medford Daylight Alleys.

Hormel is the ideal athlete. Small but wiry, he has perfect control and co-ordination gained during his full athletic career, attributes which has helped him rush to the bowling forefront.

THIRD ON GRIDIRON

He was both football and track captain at Medford High and he held the schoolboy 300-yard record from 1924 to 1932, one eventually broken by Larry Scanlon of English High. He was the brilliant star of great New York University football teams under Coach Chick Meehan from 1926 to 1930.

As a junior he scored 75 points to be third leading collegiate scorer of the country. Miles Lane, Dartmouth boy from Melrose, was high that season.

He served six years as Fred Ostergren's assistant football coach at Arlington before returning to Medford High. He is one of the thousands of top athletes who has found an outlet for his sports exuberance on the bowling alleys. The American-Record tournament has many like him. Inevitably they become rabid bowling fans and most of them are proficient at rolling high scores.

This annual candlepin championship brings together men and women from all walks of life. But the best of the sport is that the non-athlete many times is equally as efficient at it as the athlete. All are welcome and all are urged to file their entry blank today.

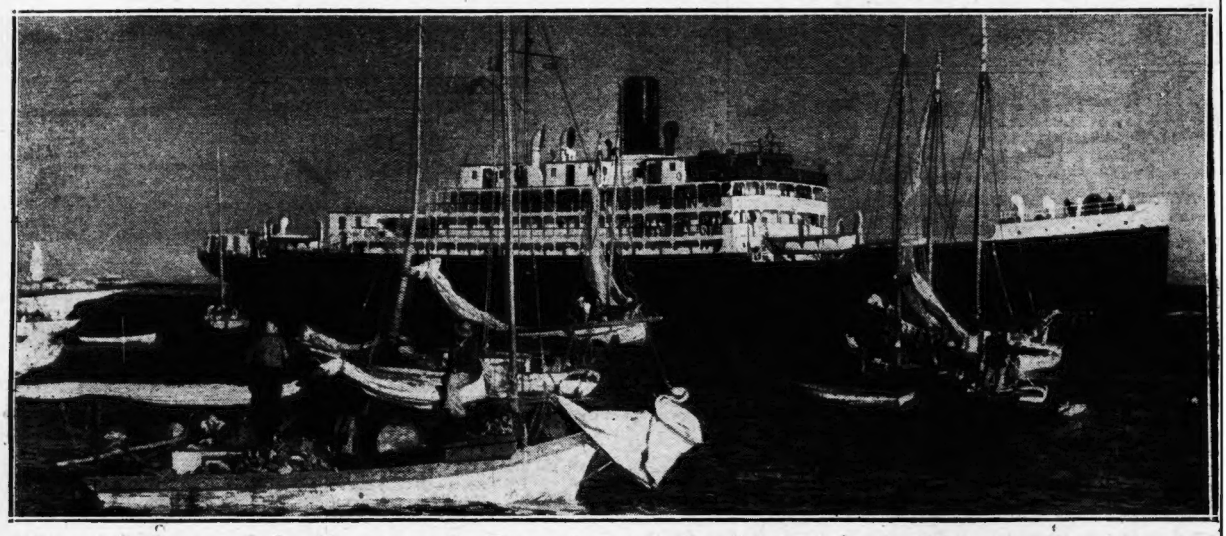
HUB LINER ON ROCKS OFF CAPE COD IN BUZZARDS BAY



Liner Aground in Buzzards Bay—En route to New York from Boston the 4858-ton Merchant and Miners liner Kent (above) ran hard aground near Cuttyhunk Island in Buzzards Bay today . . . one passenger and a crew of about 50 aboard. Commercial tugs and salvage ships are on their way to attempt to free the stricken ship. She is pictured in Nassau harbor on recent trip. STORY ON PAGE 3

FD Signs

Seated at his desk in the White House study, President Roosevelt affixes his signature to the Lease-Lend bill . . . just 15 minutes after it came from Capitol Hill. Four minutes after the signing, the President ordered an undisclosed list of war materials sent to England and Greece.
